Lawson's Treasures Auctioned

CROWD AT SALE OF ESTATE

Effects for Which Financier Paid a Fortune Placed Under the Hammer

Today being Columbus Day, all the theatres gave special matinees, at special prices.

At Egypt, near Scituate, the curtain rose on a tragedy whose principal actor was off-stage, too much affected to trust himself to hear the monotonous words of the prompter: "What am I offered?"

Here, too, an admission was charged. It cost $5 per person, this privilege of attending the auction sale of the treasures, household effects and furniture of Thomas W. Lawson, which began today at his estate, Dreamwold.

The deposit of $5 was returned when persons left. This feature was obviously designed to keep the attendance, so far as possible, limited to persons who came to buy, or at

Be Practical—Sell Unused Things About the House

It is a duty to conserve your resources. That means, buy what you need and sell the things in your possession which you do not need. So long as these things are useful they should be allowed to serve, and if you cannot use them then let somebody else have them.

Make a list of the unused pieces of furniture, rugs, draperies—anything that is useful, and offer them for sale through an ad in The American's "For Sale" columns. You will find the money they bring a very useful addition to you spending money.

Braves Field, Oct. 12.—Twenty thousand cheering football fans were on hand this afternoon to see Boston College and Fordham clash in the big holiday game.

The day was ideal for football. A cool breeze swept across the field from the Charles and put plenty of pep into the playing of the rival knights of the gridiron.

FIRST PERIOD.

Boston College kicked off to Fordham and after a series of penalties and two exchanges of kicks Cronin of Boston College caught a Fordham punt and ran it back 23 yards to Fordham's 42-yard line.

Two rushes by Boston College failed to gain and Darling tossed a pretty forward pass to Comerford, who carried the ball over the goal line for a touchdown.

Paton dropped kicked a point following touchdown.

Score—Boston College 7, Fordham 0.

SECOND PERIOD.

Boston College added 13 points in the second period. The first touchdown of the period came when Darling waded through the Fordham line carried the ball 75 yards to Fordham's 1-yard line. There Boston College received a 15-yard penalty, but in three plays Cronin was sent through the line for the touchdown

BATTLE FOR RIGHT TO RACE CANADIAN

Four speedy fishing schooners competed today in the elimination races to decide which boat shall meet the Bluenose, Canadian aspirant for the championship of the North Atlantic.

BLUENOSE LOST BY ESCORT IN FOG

Canadian Fishermen's Cup Defender Cuts Adrift From Destroyer

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 12.—Canadian destroyer Patriot, which was towing Canada's champion fishing schooner Bluenose to Gloucester for the international races next week, has lost her tow in a dense fog, according to a radio message received here today.

The message, signed by Commander Jones of the Patriot, said the tow line parted during the night, and owing to the heavy fog he had been unable again to locate the schooner.

He said he would continue his search for the Bluenose, and if he failed to find her by dusk would proceed to Gloucester, hoping the schooner might have found her way ahead of him.

YANKEE IS SECOND; DUNTON THIRD

Boston Boat Made Last Leg Exciting for a Brief Period

Gloucester, Oct. 12.—The Gloucester schooner Henry Ford won the first elimination trial in the Fishermen series today.

The last leg was exciting as the Yankee made a big gain after passing the fourth mark. The Dunton was a poor third.

Nearing the fourth mark the Ford pulled away fast from the Yankee and gained a lead of ten minutes. The Ford on rounding headed in shore on the port tack.

Meantime the Yankee, favored by a sudden shift of wind to the northwest with a freshening to twelve knots, spun around the mark and immediately tacked to starboard, being nearly able to fetch the finish. The Ford was to windward, but the shift had favored the Yankee.

At 3:50, three miles from the finish the Yankee ran into a soft spot which enabled the Ford to win by nearly sixteen minutes.

The Ford, despite an accident of

CALLS CHARGES UNFAIR; QUITS POLICE FORCE

Frank E. Barthelmes said today that he resigned from the Boston police department because he was "sore" when charges were preferred against him because he was off duty when he was ill.

Barthelmes was a patrolman attached to Fields Corner station. He was charged with being absent from duty without leave. At his home on Walnut avenue he said:

"I was taken sick and was unable to report for duty. There was no telephone in the house and I could not get in communication with my station. Two officers came here and found I was sick. Then I learned that charges had been preferred against me.

"I resigned because I was sore when they preferred charges. I had previously thought of resigning because night work was not agreeing with me and I could not get on the day shift."

GERMANY FORBIDS EXCHANGE GAMBLING

Berlin, Oct. 12, (By the Associated Press)—President Ebert today issued a decree against speculation in exchange. It forbids domestic prices being fixed in foreign currency or on the basis of such currency, and it provides that purchases of foreign currency are permissible only by consent of a special control department.

300 SAVED AS U. S. STEAMER BURNS AT SEA

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—"Good-by to all." This message flashed by a radio operator to the Radio Corporation station at 10:13 signalled that all aboard the City of Honolulu, burning off the Pacific coast, have left the vessel. A little later this message was received: "All left but Captain Lester, chief officer, chief engineer and myself."

San Francisco, Oct. 12. (By the Associated Press).—The passenger steamer Honolulu, carrying 300 or more tourists, returning from the Hawaiian Islands, was afire today in the Pacific Ocean, and her passengers were being lowered into lifeboats.

The Honolulu sent two S. O. S. calls before 8:30 this morning, which were picked up by the Matson line steamer Enterprise, which immediately put about in the hope of reaching the steamer in four or five hours.

At 9 o'clock the Federal Telegraph Company received a wireless message saying the passengers were leaving the ship.

The message relayed to the Mat-

New York, Oct. 12.—(By Associated Press)—Federal Judge Hand today granted a temporary restraining order prohibiting H. C. Stuart, acting collector of the port Ralph A. Day, Federal prohibition director for New York, and John G. Appleby, chief zone prohibition officer, from putting into effect the Federal order to seize ships and liquor under the Daugherty prohibition decision.

N. H. to Reopen Shops

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 12.—Reopening next Monday of a portion of the railroad shops in New Haven of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to handle car repair work was announced today. The official notice says [illegible] employes of her own, led the Yankee by a mile, but the Yankee was pulling steadily away from the Dunton, with the wind dropping and a slow finish in sight.

The Yankee later began to overhaul noticeably on the Ford and at the third mark had registered a big gain.

The Howard, her topmast gone, tried gallantly to keep on, but decided finally to yield to the other three, and started back for Gloucester for repairs. This was at 12:30.

MISHAP ON THE FORD.

Twenty minutes later the Ford tacked to starboard and her staysail halyard went adrift. Two men climbed aloft to secure it. It was hauled up in a few minutes and the boat kept on, crossing the Yankee more than a mile to windward.

The Yankee at that point had pulled out a half-mile ahead of the Dunton. The three boats were headed almost for the third mark and it looked as though they would fetch it with perhaps a short hitch to starboard.

By then the wind had dropped to about eight knots and was still dropping. The heavily ballasted Ford was standing up like a church and gaining.

YANKEE BEGINS TO GAIN.

The Ford held the starboard tack off shore for twenty-two minutes and then tacked for the third mark, the wind off shore was lighter and the Ford seemed to lose on the other hand.

The Yankee held the port tack until 1:13, and then tacked for the third mark, having gained apparently on the Ford. The Dunton coming up astern of the Yankee did not swing over on the starboard tack until 1:18, being about half a mile astern.

The Ford apparently overstood on her starboard tack and came for the third mark on the port tack with her sheets slightly started. On the other hand, the Yankee held the inshore tack until she fetched the mark very neatly with the result that she cut the Ford's lead to five minutes and twenty-five seconds, having gained a minute and forty-five seconds in the ten-mile beat to windward.

In the slide down the Yankee, a better breeze astern, gained on the Ford three miles from the fourth mark. The Ford still had a load of nearly a mile and appeared to have the race now in hand, although there was still a five-mile thrash on the last leg to the finish.

The breeze kept dying down until as the boats neared Cape Ann about mid-afternoon it was blowing scarcely more than six knots.

Far astern came the Dunton, with very little chance of being within two miles of the other boats at the finish.

Early in the race the Elizabeth Howard, New York entry, had suffered a good lead, which she had as a result of the carrying of her main topmast.

LAWSON'S TREASURES SOLD UNDER HAMMER

Auctioneer William K. Mackey of Boston briskly opened the sale in the presence of 400 persons gathered under a big tent in front of the main house.

ELEPHANT ON HANDS.

Mr. Mackey began, appropriately enough, with one of the Lawson "elephants," a beautiful bit of bronze modeled by Theodore Riviere.

But the auctioneer found he had an elephant on his hands in more than one sense. Bidding was not so brisk. The objet d'art represented an elephant into whose chest a spear had been thrust. The creature was reared up in mortal agony.

The bronze was about 20 inches from the base to the tip of the uplifted trunk, exquisitely moulded. It was bid in by R. M. Coleman of No. 320 Milk street, Boston, for only $45, a low price.

Auctioneer Mackey made a wry face, and ceased offering elephants.

He hoped, possibly, that elephants would go better later on. He switched to rug rugs.

FLOCK TO AUCTION.

Arrivals began as early as 9:30. Mostly they came in automobiles. There was every grade of car parked on the grounds. Registrations of all New England States and New York State showed the wide distribution of the attendance.

The Lawson estate presented forlorn appearance, compared with the luxury that once obtained there. The buildings showed need of paint.

The long rows of stables, where blooded show horses had been quartered, were empty; likewise the kennels where the Lawson bulldogs were bred.

In a paddock just beyond the main house two old work-horses gazed in apparent equine amazement at the bustle and activity, such as "Dreamworld" has not know for many a day.

In through the lodge gate and over the mile-long driveway to the house the automobiles rolled, varied by an occasional horse-drawn vehicle.

IN CIRCUS TENT.

If the former "Copper King" was on deck he kept out of sight. One naked persons connected with the auction, attaches and the like. The common answer was: "I haven't seen him anywhere."

A tent, as big as some circus "big tops," was erected near the main house. Successive articles to be put on sale were brought from the house into the tent and put on the auctioneer's raised platform, so all could see.

There was an audiphone on the platform. The auctioneer used this at first. One could have heard him a quarter mile away. But this voice hurling device was soon abandoned as unnecessary in the restricted confines of the tent.

The auction is being held by order of Horace T. Fogg and William A. Burton as trustees for Lawson to liquidate taxes, notes and other Lawson indebtedness.

The sale includes the estate and buildings, but the 2,150 lots listed in the catalog for today's proceedings included only furniture, furnishings and art objects.

GUARD OF POLICE.

A corps of alert clerks, carrying bundles of catalogues, kept the new arrivals supplied.

The Scituate Woman's Club and the Norwell District Nurse Association arranged to sell luncheons to one and all.

More than a score of policemen and possibly a number of plain-clothesman were on hand. The police badges showed that Hingham, Scituate and other South Shore towns had been called on for this special guardianship.

Before the auction began the main house was inspected with interest. But the auction itself gathered all under the big tent at 10:30. The catalogue showed that little, if anything, in the house was being spared.

One "lot" included three framed diplomas awarded Lawson for blooded horses at the St. Louis Exposition.

Another lot included framed photographs of persons said to be Lawson's friends.

A sword, captured in the Philippines, Oct. 13, 1899—twenty-three years ago tomorrow—was listed for sale.

PLENTY OF ELEPHANTS.

There were paintings, etchings, furniture and elephants, especially elephants. There were metal elephants, pottery, Faience and marble elephants listed, all going to make up the notable Lawson collection of these pachyderm replicas.

After his depressing $45 experience with the Riviere elephant, Auctioneer Mackey put up a four-foot rag rug. This brought $5, which was more in proportion to value than the Riviere elephant raised.

A second rug was bid in for $2, a hooked rug five feet long for $10.

THOUSANDS HELD UP BY STALLED TROLLEY

Thousands of nightworkers and persons returning from dances and theatre parties were delayed when a car became stalled in the East Boston tunnel early today. Cars going in the direction of Chelsea and East Boston were tied up almost an hour until the damaged car was repaired.

Traffic was congested at Scollay Under and Devonshire street stations as a result.

LIGHTNING STARTS TWO MAINE FIRES

Portland, Me., Oct. 12.—Lightning started two fires in Westbrook. The Carmichael Mill was struck and the cupola of a barn owned by James Clay Bar. Firemen did a quick job ers changed to cheers when they saw the crew clear away the wreckage and keep on. The accident, however, forced the Howard to shorten sail to four lowers, the jib topsail and the foretopsail. Captain Pipe seemed to be able to hold the Ford for the first fifteen minutes after the accident.

At 11:40 the Howard, with her broken topmast across the masthead like a yard, was still leading the Ford by half a mile, but the latter was gaining gradually and beating out a bit to weather. The Dunton was going through the Yankee's lee, although the former was holding very high. None of the boats had their lee rails awash.

Clear, crisp weather favored today's contest, the first of a series of elimination races to select the challenger of the Lunenburg, N. S., schooner Bluenose, present holder of the international fishermen's trophy.

CROWDS WATCH RACE.

If the attention being paid the elimination contests is any criterion the trophy race itself will be the object of unprecedented interest. Already a large number of enthusiasts has arrived in Gloucester.

Of the American schooners competing for the right to challenge the Bluenose the Henry Ford of Gloucester ruled the favorite in betting here, but it is thought the Elizabeth Howard of New York is receiving as strong support in unprejudiced quarters.

The Yankee and the L. A. Dunton, both hailing from Boston, have their own supporters.

The winner of the elimination races will be pitted against the Bluenose to wrest from the latter the silver trophy of the Halifax Herald and Evening Mail which the Bluenose won last year by defeating the Elsie, sailed by Captain Marty Welch.

Fog and rain have greatly hampered the work of getting the schooners Yankee and L. A. Dunton, both hailing from Boston, in racing trim.

STATE POLICE AID IN "DEATH KISS" PROBE

Gloucester, Oct. 12.—State Inspector Murray has arrived to take charge of the investigation of the mysterious deaths of Harry Devine and Stella Zeiselot, found dead several days ago in the Summer estate of Miss Caroline Sinkler at Eastern Point.

His arrival is said to have followed complaints of citizens here that the local police have failed to pursue the investigation properly.

Upon his arrival here Inspector Murray is said to have had a heated conference with City Marshal Whidden, whereupon the latter is reported to have withdrawn from the case.

Friends of the chauffeur and maid continue to claim that their deaths were accidental.

At the same time, they put forward vigorous denials that the chauffeur and maid had been found dead in one another's arms. They two were lying apart when found, they declared, and there was nothing to indicate they had been making love.

DENIED BY POLICE.

This is despite the assertions of the police, who say that servants lifted the bodies from the floor and tried to prevent their learning of the last embrace.

Bridget McGeehan, the cook, who found the bodies, will not talk to reporters. But to her friend, Mrs. Roland Wanson, a servant in an adjoining estate, she is reported to have said that she believed gas poisoning had killed them.

It is also reported the cook asserted that the gas piping in the Binkler mansion was leaky, and on several occasions she had noticed the smell of escaping gas in the place and that a gas burner in the kitchen was going all night, but she believed there was a leak in one of the joints of the piping.

LIFTED BODY TO PORCH.

She smelled gas in the kitchen when she entered, according to her story, but did not think that the two people on the floor were dead. She carried Miss Zeiselot to the porch, hoping that the fresh air might revive her, before discovering that the girl was lifeless.

HELD AFTER ROBBERY IN SCITUATE HOME

George W. Hall of No. 97 High street, Hingham, and James H. Kelly of Samoset avenue, Kenberma, were arrested by Brookline police on a charge of robbing the Summer home of Mrs. Carrie C. Kellog at Scituate. They were held in $1,000 bail. Police say they were caught in the act of trying to pawn articles which were later identified as having been stolen from Mrs. Kellog's place.

son offices at the same time by the steamer Enterprise gave the Honolulu's position as "1,606 miles east of Honolulu."

Thirteen minutes before the passengers began to leave the burning vessel the boats were lowered, the Federal Telegraph's message stated. The Federal company did not expect to receive further messages unless the radio operators remained on the vessel.

Three Vessels Believed Near Burning Liner

Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—The position of the burning steamship City of Honolulu at 2:30 o'clock this morning was latitude 31.07 north and longitude 131.40 west. Three vessels are known to be near the City of Honolulu, the transport Thomas and the steamers Enterprise and the City of Los Angeles.

Twelve minutes before the Honolulu sent word that she was lowering boats, she put out her second S. O. S. call and sent a message saying a bad fire was raging on the vessel.

The fire was beyond control at 10:19 a. m., at which hour the ship was being abandoned by the captain, chief engineer, first officer and radio operator, the last four aboard, said a radio despatch received here.

The City of Honolulu is a Shipping Board vessel of 17,500 tons and was allocated to the local company for six months' trial for service between this city and the Hawaiian Islands. It left September 23 with more than 300 passengers, mostly tourists, and it is believed a large number of these were returning on the vessel.

3 RUNAWAY GIRLS CLAIM ABDUCTION

Framingham, Oct. 12.—Three fourteen-year-old girl runaways were apprehended in a Syrian lodging house in Waverley Court by local police who notified relatives in Manville, R. I., who came and took them home. The runaways are: Corne Dufrena, Mamie Desjardin, and Dolores Poulhriand. When arrested they had large sums of money on their persons and aroused two foreigners as their abductors. Police are searching for the two men.

WOMAN IN KNICKERS TAKEN AT DISTILLERY

Jeffersonville, Ind., Oct. 12.—Officers entered a shack on the river bank and found a distilling plant in charge of Mrs. Albertus Acuff, who was clad in khaki, with knee-length trousers. She furnished $1,000 bond for herself, but let her assistant stay in jail.

WOMEN IN CHAIR DUMPED INTO SEA

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 12.—Chiarette Duffin, Chicago girl, who deserted pink teas for the stage and her aunt, Mrs. Hale Curran, while riding in a wheelchair, hit a loose plank and were dumped into the ocean.

Columbus—His Day Somewhere, the Sun Shines

What a Big Universe Safety Pays. Ask Judge Gary

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, by Star Company

Not quite five hundred years ago Christopher Columbus was born. This is Columbus's "Day," but not his birthday probably. There is no certainty about that. It is a day to remind young gentlemen that if they work hard they may do something better than they could imagine.

Columbus was seeking a short cut to India, in days when there was no Suez Canal. When he bumped into America, and went back to be badly treated and put in jail, he considered his life a failure, and died a disappointed man.

This birthday also reminds us that the boss, directing and coercing, may be more useful than he seems. Christopher Columbus's sailors wanted to throw him overboard because he persisted in his "dim and perilous way."

When Columbus, landing on Cat Island, saw the brown natives, he thought he was in India, and called them Indians. We keep the name, which is preposterous.

It is said that Columbus was tall, with an aquiline nose, which means a nose like an eagle's beak, and blue eyes. He died neglected and never knew what he had discovered. If he could come now in a flying machine to watch our election and see a hundred millions of people demonstrate their inability to govern themselves, he might say, "I made a mistake."

An old baseball poem says: "Somewhere in this pleasant land the sun is shining bright." One such spot is the humble home of the Standard Oil of New Jersey stockholder. Yesterday he learned that stock in the company was increased from $110,000,000 to $625,000,000. He gets a 400 per cent. stock dividend, a good deal better than cash, for later those shares will have more little baby shares, and the sun will shine again.

Strange that a country rich enough to get such magnificent results from the users of gasoline, etc., isn't rich enough to pay a bonus to its soldiers.

Answer to that puzzle:

Standard Oil is well organized, the people not.

This universe, where in some shape you have always existed,

Doubting God, Boy 16, Kills Self

GIVES SIX REASONS FOR ACT

Bridgeport High School Lad Writes: "Far-Reaching Questions Made Life Miserable"

Bridgeport, Ct., Oct. 12.—Giving six reasons for ending his existence, in a letter which he wrote, chief of which was the doubt of the existence of God, Raymond Bradley, sixteen-year-old sophomore in the Bridgeport High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Bradlay of this city, committed suicide by shooting himself in the temple in his room at his home early today.

In addition to the letter explaining the reasons for his action, young Bradley left a note in which he said: "I loved my love, but she didn't love me." He named no one in this connection.

In a letter he said:

"What made my life miserable in the last two weeks, and also what caused my despondency, are:

"1—Reading of Les Miserables.

"2—The thought that the world will get along just as well without me.

"3—I have a cold and a feeling that I am not living, anyhow.

"4—I have had the feeling of 'I don't care' for the last two weeks.

"5—The thoughts of thinking of far-reaching questions as 'who made the world?' 'is there any God?' the theory of Darwin concerning a struggle for existence or the survival of the fittest. Has man the right to take the life of any living thing, because all are created equal?"

"6—The reading of the handbook—New Thought Publication name undecipherable has affected me terribly, terribly, as I do not know whether there is a God or not and I do not think any one does."

In another note the boy asked that he be placed in a plain casket, with plenty of flowers, and canaries hanging in the room.

Teachers at the Bridgeport High School said the lad was a model student.

BRINGS REFUGEE STUDENTS TO U. S.

Athens, Oct. 12 (By the Associated Press).—The Greek government, supported by private organizations, including American, is achieving extraordinary results in solving the problem presented by the presence of thousands of refugees from Asia Minor.

Mrs. Kingsley Birge today left Piraeus for New York on the steamship King Alexander with twenty-five refugee students, fifteen girls from the American Girls' Institute at Smyrna and ten young men from the International College at Smyrna.

Forty Americans, representing the American legation and consulate, the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., have organized the future work which will be carried out in co-operation with the other organizations.

WHOLE ESTATE GOES TO BELL'S WIDOW

Washington, Oct. 12.—The will of the late Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, naming his widow as sole beneficiary in an estate valued "in excess of $2,000," was allowed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. The value of the estate was not revealed under a provision of the will that no inventory be required of the executors, Mrs. Bell and a cousin, Charles J. Bell. The estate included considerable property in Canada.

EX-WIFE CALLS DOCTOR 'WOMAN MANIAC'

MRS. IRENE MACKEY

SOUTH BOSTON WOMAN WINS DIVORCE

"I wish you success and as many women as you want!"

This is what Mrs. Irene Mackey of South Boston says were her parting words to Dr. Charles E. Mackey of No. 520 Broadway, when she claims she discovered that he had been unfaithful to her. Mrs. Mackey was granted a divorce decree nisi in Suffolk Probate Court yesterday.

"Success ruined my husband and turned him from a sincere loving boy whose intentions toward me were honest and noble, into a woman-maniac, with few scruples about deceiving the women who trusted him," said the divorcee.

NAMES TWO WOMEN.

The physician's wife named two corespondents, Miss June Porenski of South Boston and Mrs. Isabelle Hurid of No. 23 F street, South Boston. The chief witness for Mrs. Mackey at the trial was William Shine, who testified that while he had been employed as an interior decorator in the house of Mrs. Josephine Bucci at South Lincoln, he had seen Dr. Mackey and Mrs. Hurid together.

Dr. Mackey had ordered a drink brought to his room, according to Shine's testimony, and when the decorator brought the drink to a bedroom, he found Mrs. Hurid also there. Both, he said, were only partly clad.

"For months my friends had tried to warn me that Dr. Mackey was running wild," said the doctor's former wife, "but I worshipped him and believed everything he told me, and I thought he couldn't possibly be bad."

Judge White took under advisement the amount of alimony which Dr. Mackey is to pay. Dr. Mackey is a World War veteran and the official doctor of South Boston Post, American Legion.

Mrs. Mackey will continue to live with her parents on Atlantic street. She is an artist, supporting herself by her work.

J. D., JR., NETS $52,441,280 IN OIL MELON

New York, Oct. 12.—Millions of dollars have been added in the past year to the fortunes of those who had large holdings of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey stock as a result of the market appreciation of the shares which today are quoted at above $241, as compared with $125, within the past year.

While the 400 per cent. dividend declared yesterday by the parent company of the Standard Oil group is expected to send the stock skyrocketing even higher, speculative buying in anticipation of this action for the past two months especially kept the prices soaring.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has holdings, the value of which have increased by $52,441,280 within a year. The next largest holder, the Rockefeller Foundation, finds its stock with an added value of $22,784,000 over last year. Elihu S. Prentiss is the second biggest individual gainer, her holdings appreciating $15,660,000.

A table showing some of the largest holders of the company's stock and the increased value of it follows:

	Shares owned	Increased in market value during 1922
John D. Rockefeller, Jr.	452,000	$52,441,280
Rockefeller Foundation	196,000	22,784,000
Northern Finance Corp.	80,000	13,580,000
Elihu S. Prentiss	135,000	15,660,000
A. Rockefeller Prentiss	80,000	9,280,000
Edith H. McCormick	33,280	3,859,000
Harold McCormick	4,000	464,000
Harold McCormick Jr.	4,000	464,000
Anna M. Harkness	112,500	13,064,000

INDEPENDENT COAL MEN AGREE ON PRICE

Washington, Oct. 12.—An agreement which is expected to result in fixing the maximum price of anthracite mined by independent operators at $9.25 per ton at the mines, has been reached between the Pennsylvania authorities and Fuel Distributor Spens, representing the Federal government. The agreement is regarded by officials as assuring immediate reductions in the hard coal prices now charged by independent operators controlling 20 per cent. of the output.

DEMANDS NAME OF ACCUSER

By International News Service.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 12.—Demanding that he reveal the name of the person who told him she had invited two traveling salesmen to visit her at an Atlanta hotel, Mrs. Onezima de Bouchelle, New Orleans beauty, who broke her engagement to Asa G. Candler, Atlanta millionaire, has made public a letter to the aged capitalist.

The letter was written on September 28. It was:

"My attorney informs me that yesterday you refused to divulge the name of the man in Atlanta who you claim to have visited me there in my room for immoral purposes. Do you expect me to let this hideous slander go unpunished?

"I'll publish it to the whole world and we will see if the world is as credulous as you seem to be and as you expect me to be.

"If there are any such men, and I certainly do not believe there are, who make such statements, they have been paid to do it, and they shall go to the penitentiary along with those who hired them.

"CLUMSY CONSPIRACY."

"This is a clumsy conspiracy that imposes on nobody but you. Why did it come up in Atlanta right at this time, in fact just in time to stop your coming to Reno for our wedding on the 20th; why does it come up in Atlanta at all, except that it is distant from my home and friends and where it will be harder for me to meet perjury and hired assassins?

"My attorney stated you said the man was a traveling salesman; that is a respectable class. I'll call on the traveling salesmen of the South to protect me as an innocent, defenceless woman from a dog, a cur, who is the tool of my enemies.

"You must divulge the name of this person. Unless you do so I'll act on the assumption that there is no such person and that you have been too willing to be imposed upon.

"Besides, you are a Christian gentleman. As a Christian gentleman, as a man of honor, can you treat a helpless woman this way? You know I have not a single male relative in the world. I am not appealing to you as my promised husband and natural protector, but just as a man.

WON'T ACCEPT INSULT.

"How can you think for a minute that I ought to accept this insult in silence and humbly steal away into some remote place to hide the shame of a woman cast aside because she is not supposed to be a good woman? I will never do it.

PAYS $150 FOR HALF INTEREST IN A BEE

Amenia, N. D., Oct. 12.—A half interest in Achievement Girl, a queen honey bee of the American Apiaries, has been sold to J. M. Cutter and son, Montgomery, Ala., for $150, setting a new record for bee values. The queen was mailed to Alabama, where she will pass the Winter, to be returned to North Dakota next Spring. She was a member of a colony which last Summer set one of three world's records for honey production.

Sues Noted Banker for Divorce

MRS. CAROLINA MORTON POTTER.

MRS. POTTER SUES BANKER IN PARIS COURTS

New York, Oct. 13.—Mrs. Carolina Morton Potter's friends have learned that she has sued in the Paris courts for a divorce from William Chapman Potter, president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

Mrs. Potter is a daughter of the late Paul Morton, former Secretary of the Navy, who was president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society at the time of his death. Her husband is one of the best-known financial men in the world. He comes from a banking family, son of Edwin A. Potter, leading Chicago banker. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with the degree of bachelor of science in mining engineering.

The Potters were married in 1903, and there are two children, daughters, aged seventeen and nineteen, respectively.

The residence of Mr. Potter is given as the Hotel Lotti, Paris, and that of Mrs. Potter as No. 5 Square Trocadero, Paris. Mr. Potter left the hotel a couple of days ago. When communicated with at her residence, Mrs. Potter refused to give out any information as to the cause of her action.

FROST TONIGHT OR TOMORROW

A frost is predicted for tonight or early tomorrow.

This is the forerunner of a cold wave now sweeping eastward from the central valleys.

Temperatures will drop considerably this evening and it will be fair but much colder tonight and tomorrow and probably until Saturday, when it is expected to become warmer, according to weather bureau forecasts.

Snow is reported in parts of Michigan.

ARMED MEN TEAR UP TRACKS IN KILDARE

Belfast, Oct. 12.—Armed men, who were thought to be protesting against the pronouncement of the Irish hierarchy against the anti-treaty movement, invaded Maynooth Village, Kildare, and tore up the railroad tracks. They blocked a Galway-bound mail train and blew up a railroad bridge.

ARGONNE VET KILLS SELF IN HAYSTACK

West Newbury, Oct. 12.—Shades of the Argonne drove Prentiss Myrick to his death today.

Living over again the terrors of war days, Myrick burrowed into a hay stack Monday and there lay buried, smothering to death, until found by relatives.

And Wednesday, seeing phantoms of comrades torn and twisted by shrapnel, he went to the barn and fastened a rope about his neck. His mother stopped him as he was about to jump from a barrel.

Mother love triumphed over despair, only to lose when the shell-shock victim went again to the barn, knotted the same rope about his neck and stepped into eternity a few minutes before his mother found his swinging body.

Prentiss Myrick was 24. He lived on Georgetown road. Only two weeks ago he came home from an army sanitarium in New Jersey believed to have been cured of shell shock he suffered in the Argonne.

CHAIN ELEPHANT AFTER RAMPAGE

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 12.—The four-ton circus elephant, which for forty-eight hours has been celebrating in the vicinity of Wilmington by wrecking everything in sight, was chained again today to a stake at a quiet spot near Cedar Point, while her wearied keepers kept her supplied with extra rations of peanuts and other elephant delicacies to calm her frayed nerves.

The big animal escaped from a circus here Tuesday morning after becoming frightened by the barking of dogs. She went through fences, flower beds, a cabin and a dye factory, and turned over several automobiles. In addition she swam Cape Fear River and penetrated the alligator infested Brunswick Swamp without apparent damage to herself.

Notice of suit for $5,000 damages has been filed by the Eureka Dye works here, and various residents want their lawns, fences and automobiles paid for.

TELLS OF DEATHBED GIFT BY RECLUSE

Says Aged Millionaire Was to Marry Her and Give Her Part of Fortune

Bangor, Me., Oct. 12.—A fortune based on the love promise of a dying millionaire hangs in the balance in Supreme Court.

Mrs. Ella F. Guild seeks payment of a $75,000 check given her as the first installment of a $500,000 dowry by Frederick W. Hill a few hours before his death.

The Eastern Trust & Banking Company is opposing on the ground that the promise to pay and promise to marry being verbal, there was no legal contract, and therefore the check is invalid.

With the trial of the suit came knowledge of the second and twilight romance of the aged millionaire.

"Fred" Hill, wealthy in his own right, waited until past sixty in order to marry the woman of his dreams, the woman who had jilted him to wed another.

In 1911 he married Mrs. Marianne Hersey, widow of Eugene Hersey, possessor of a fortune or several millions. She died in 1915.

As the years waned Hill, lonely and embittered over his early love disappointment, sought solace in the company of his favorite cousin, Mrs. Guild.

Came then a day when he decided to wed. First he counselled with Henry F. Guild of Cambridge, a son of the woman, saying he would settle $200,000 on the mother if she would marry.

ON DEATH BED.

Eventually the amount was fixed at $500,000. Hill proposed and was accepted. So on Saturday afternoon, April 10, 1920, the seventy odd year old recluse, apparently feeling the chill of death approaching, called Mrs. Guild and her son to his bedside.

With shaking hands he filled out a check in the sum of $75,000 and handed it to the woman with the words:

"There, Ella, is a check for you. This is a bargain between you and me and Henry is a witness. I will fix the rest of it as soon as I can get to the bank."

Scarcely had the ink dried when Hill died.

CARL LINDBERG IS STILL SINGLE MAN

Carl Lindberg of No. 1955 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, wishes it known that he is not a Benedict, and has no intention of immediately becoming such. Lindberg was named by William McNaughton of Everett as the chap who stole his girl, Miss Katherine Lang of Roxbury. McNaughton has filed suit against the young woman for return of his ring.

"It's some other Lindberg—not I," said Lindberg today. "I never saw the young woman. I never go near girls."

N. Y. BOMB SUSPECT ARRESTED AGAIN

Warsaw, Oct. 12.—Wolfe Lindenfeld, arrested last year in connection with the great Wall street explosion in New York city and recently released on bail here, has been rearrested on a charge of obtaining $900 from various persons for whom he promised to get American passport visas.

PRESENT LAW PROVES FILM CENSOR USELESS

JAIL AND FINE IS PENALTY

Total Lack of Need for State Screen Censor Expressed in Many Letters

Massachusetts does not need a moving picture censor, for the laws of this Commonwealth provide jail sentences and fines for any persons connected with a production that "tends to corrupt the morals of youth."

Section 32, Chapter 272 of the General Laws, reads as follows:

"Whoever, as owner, manager, director, agent or in any other capacity, prepares, advertises, gives, presents or participates in any lewd, indecent, immoral or impure show or entertainment, or in any show or entertainment suggestive of lewdness, obscenity, indecency, immorality or impurity, or in any show or entertainment manifestly tending to corrupt the morals of youth, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, or both."

With this penalty authorized by law, the need of a censor in this State is nil. That is why the citizens of the State are going to fight against a censor. The public is already well protected against disreputable producers or theatre managers, if there are any.

Tax-payers in Massachusetts are aroused. The Boston American offers $400 in cash for those writing the best letters on the subject. Already hundreds have submitted letters.

Here are some of the best:

Editor, Boston American:

We have the lesson of five other States before us and we should carefully consider the question of establishing such a censorship in our own. In every instance where a censorship has been created, it has resulted in hampering and demoralizing the motion picture industry, which has become one of the greatest enterprises in this country. The censors in all cases are clothed with autocratic power, a power which they have not the sense to use intelligently. Pictures which are passed in one State are debarred in another. Films of questionable character have been approved by the same censors who forbade the exhibition of others that were perfectly harmless and proper.

The moving picture censors go upon the theory that the public is half-witted, or wholly imbecile, and quite incapable of judging anything for itself. They are quit willing to risk their own morals by looking at any picture that may be produced, but would these same people who are so anxious to do this for the "public good," be willing to make tests of food and drink in order to be sure that the dear public should not be poisoned?

These blue-nosed crepe-hangers have not the public welfare at heart; they are actuated by no sincere desire to do good. What right have they to set themselves up as dictators? Tell the public what it may and may not have? Why should these hypocrites be allowed to get their hands on the already overburdened payroll of this Commonwealth? Why should they be permitted to do it?

TRUMAN THAYER
Amherst, Mass.

PUBLIC BEST JUDGE.

Editor, Boston American:

Every American citizen of Massachusetts has at heart the best interests of the community in which he lives. It is civic pride that prompts him to say to strangers: "We have the best town, in the State, the finest people, the nicest amusements and the cleanest pictures that can be found."

Let a theatre manager exhibit a picture that does not conform to the standard these people strive to uphold, and see how quickly someone, either citizen or member of woman's club or a church, will call up the chief of police, the Selectmen, the Mayor, the ministers, or someone else in authority, and register a complaint.

Then you just watch that chief, Mayor, Selectman or minister get busy. One word to the manager who dreads unfavorable comment about his theatre equally as much as box office losses, and note how quickly and cordially he co-operates with the objectors and removes the picture from the program.

We don't need censors: what we need is the common sense, the civic pride and co-operation of every American citizen in Massachusetts to make each person in committee of one to report to those in authority anything objectionable and to request its removal. Then we'll all be allowed the liberty of electing or rejecting the offerings of the managers. That's true freedom, the kind guaranteed by our Constitution.

HATTIE I. HARRIS.
No. 1325 Commonwealth avenue, Allston.

PRESENT LAW AMPLE.

Editor Boston American:

Under the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts we have a censor in itself, as follows: "Whoever, as owner, manager, director, agent or in any capacity, prepares, advertises, gives, presents, or participates in any lewd, obscene, indecent, immoral or impure show or entertainment, suggestive of lewdness, obscenity, indecency, immorality, or impurity, or any show or entertainment manifestly tending to corrupt the morals of youth, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by a fine of not more than $500 or by such fine and imprisonment."

If the advocates of censorship are aware of the above, why try to abolish the freedom and rights of the citizens of Massachusetts?

Furthermore, what manager or director of a theatre is sacrificing his income by showing impure or indecent pictures which he knows will not appeal to the public? Let well enough alone.

STEPHEN J. McNEIL

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

Editor, Boston American:

The censorship of the movies is not necessary, nay it is an insult to the public which knows what it wants and certainly it does not demand immoral pictures.

Thus far the producers adhere very strictly to the law of public demand and immoral pictures are not seen on the American screen. An evil eye soon evil in the most innocent things and this seems to be the case of the crepe-hangers in this instance.

Our people have enough intelligence to know what is good and what is bad for them, without being told. JOHN J. DONOHUE.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Censorship Destroys Freedom of Judgment, Major Wilde Says

CENSORSHIP of movies means distrust of public opinion. We can stand much that is wrong in this world, but after a while public opinion will arise and condemn it and put it out of commission. There are many instances in the past where this has been in evidence.

A. G. Wilde

Mossbacks in morality who measure everything by law, I cannot tolerate. Instead of educating public opinion, they resort to some measure of compulsion which, if carried out to its logical conclusion, would have everything gagged by law. When anything is off color in a movie, I believe you can trust public opinion to right it.

Right here in Boston we have learned a lesson in the censorship of certain books. We must be a weak lot of people if we have to have them censored every once in a while to gratify the morals of a certain type of individuals who detect everything bad, because they are looking for it. "As man thinketh, so is he."

AVIATOR IS UNLUCKIEST OF 1,000

Thirteen men and women, claiming to be the unluckiest in Greater Boston, gathered on the deck of the Convict Ship "Success"

They had been selected from some 1,000 persons who wrote their hard luck stories to Captain D. H. Smith offering to earn $50 in gold by spending Friday the 13th in cell 13 of the ship.

There were a wide variety of hard luck tales, but none could compare with that told by Edward C. Twombly, the aviator who owned the show in which four men, including "The Flying Parson" were killed at Rutland, Vt.

GIRL LOST 13 SUITORS.

Twombly himself fell last week while flying to the Brockton Fair. A short time ago his bride ran away, leaving him with a two-month old baby girl. Twombly was unable to pay the infant's board. He was given until Saturday to produce the board money, or have the child taken away from him.

Miss Harriette Belle Watson, of Somerville, who declared she was born on Friday the thirteenth, had been so unlucky in love that thirteen youths had proposed to and left her, and that fortune-tellers had told her she would die on Friday the thirteenth, was selected to substitute for Twombly should he for any reason fail to appear.

HARVARD MAN PICKED.

Warren C. Westhaver, a junior, was chosen to represent Harvard in the Harvard-Tech solitary confinement endurance test which starts at 10 o'clock next Monday morning. O. A. Jones, a sophomore, was chosen as substitute for Westhaver.

Today Tech men who wish to undergo the test will apply to Captain Smith, aboard the "Success."

PRESIDENT IS READY FOR COLD WINTER

Washington, Oct. 12.—President Harding has compressed to put in his Winter coal at the White House, twenty tons of anthracite being delivered yesterday. The annual resumption of fuel at the White House is 250 tons.

SAYS HUBBY BOASTED HE MARRIED 18

Denver, Oct. 12.—"It's told me he had been married eighteen times before he inspired me, and that he didn't think anything of marrying a woman."

Mrs. Stella Tate made this charge against her husband here.

WOMAN ASKS $50,000 FOR AUTO ACCIDENT

Fall River, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Minna Passosky, of this city, has entered suit against Valerio Dupuis for $50,000, claiming that his automobile struck her on March 6 while she was crossing a street. She suffered a fractured hip and leg, she says, and will be permanently injured. Her husband also sues for $5,000 for medical expenses. Passosky has also entered suit against the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, claiming he was struck by a car last July. He seeks $5,000 damages.

WED 3 WEEKS, HER HUBBY, 61, DISAPPEARS

New York, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Nancy T. White, fifty, married less than three weeks, reports her husband, Frank, sixty-one, has disappeared. Her first husband is alive, she says, but dead to her.

B. & A. CLERKS TERM CENSOR UNAMERICAN

Boston & Albany Railroad clerks declare attempts at censorship savor of the Ku Klux Klan and about everything but Americanism. A Boston American reporter visited the South Station and interviewed scores of the clerks. Without exception, they expressed themselves as against moving picture censorship.

Miss Lillian DeLorme, No. 28 Trull street, Somerville, said:

"I am sure the people of Massachusetts are fully capable of judging the pictures they want to see. If censorship of the movies is ever adopted, it will probably be followed, in a few years, by an attempt to censor the newspapers. Soon we will not have any real liberties left if the reformers keep up their activities. I am going to vote against censorship and use my influence to have others do the same."

Lillian DeLorme

Miss Wilhelmina Owen of No. 236 Cypress street, Brookline, declared:

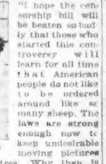
"It would be interesting to know who is the superman that will be appointed censor if the bill should, unfortunately, be adopted. The average man can think for himself, but it is foolish to believe that one man can think for several hundred thousand, and this is what censorship implies. This is supposed to be a free country, but every day the agitators are introducing some new plan to take the joy out of life."

Wilhelmina Owen

Miss Lillian Gerrold, No. 101 Central street, Auburndale, is a strong anti-censorship girl. She said: "I hope the censorship bill will be beaten so that those who started this controversy will learn for all time that American people do not like to be ordered around like so many sheep. The laws are strong enough now to keep undesirable moving pictures out of the theatres. Why, then, is it necessary to add to the expense of this State by paying a high-salaried censor to tell us what we shall see and what we shall not see?"

Lillian Gerrold

William Murphy, No. 21 Edison Green, Dorchester, is emphatic in his denunciation of movie censorship. He declared: "These owl-faced blue sky reformers would be serving their community much better if they went to work, instead of trying to interfere with someone else's pleasure all the time. They know as well as anyone there is no need of censorship in this State. Of course, it will make a soft job for someone in favor, but that does not help the movie industry at all. Therefore owners and picture producers are business men and, as such, they put out only such pictures as are going to meet with popular approval."



William Murphy

Thomas Phillips, No. 954 Bradwood street, Roslindale, said: "Is this America? Censorship of the moving pictures, to my mind, is just an opening wedge for further restrictions on the American public. It is about time real citizens got busy and showed these agitators, for that is what they are, who is running this country, Does the will of the majority mean anything in the United States or is the minority to rule? This minority, in Massachusetts, is as dangerous as the Ku Klux Klan. They would rob us of our American birthrights of liberty and pursuit of happiness."

MRS. GEORGIA BULLOCK

Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Georgia Bullock established a precedent when she mounted the bench in Superior Court here in an attempt to relieve the congested calendar. It is not recorded that any woman ever presided in the Superior Court of California before.

COLUMBUS DAY MAKES A RECORD

Boston's most picturesque Columbus Day was a record breaker.

Events crowded the program which ends in a blaze of glory with fireworks spectacles in various parts of Greater Boston tonight.

Parades, patriotic and memorial exercises, athletic meets marked the day, which was officially started by the Boston police with their annual review before the commissioner on Boston Common.

The most colorful and outstanding of the many features of the program were, of course, the police and the Italian societies' parades. A stirring touch was added at sundown when the troops of the harbor forts manoeuvred before Mayor Curley on the Common.

All day the blare of bands was heard from the time the traffic squad musicians of the police department swung from their Quincy Market headquarters to Dartmouth street, where the police paraders formed in line back of Superintendent Michael H. Crowley, resplendent in his dress uniform.

The police marched over Dartmouth to Commonwealth avenue, to Arlington street, to Boylston street, to Tremont street, through Temple place to Washington street, up School street and Beacon street to the Common, where Commissioner Wilson reviewed his men.

Mayor Curley reviewed the department at the City Hall, while Lieutenant-Governor Fuller and State dignitaries reviewed them at the State House. The Governor was unable to be present.

In all there were 1,468 men and superior officers in line.

First came Sergeant Joe Comerford and twenty-four mounted men from Division 16. Back of them marched the "super" with Captain Patrick King, departmental drill master. Next were a group of superior officers and then a band heading the first battalion, led by Deputy Superintendent Thomas C. Evans and comprising details from divisions 2, 4, 5, 10, 11, 12, 14, 17 and 18.

A band led the second division commanded by Deputy Superintendent Fennell Hall and consisting of Divisions 1, 6, 7, 8, 9, 13, 15 and detachment from City Hall avenue station. The police band and Deputy Superintendent Tom Goode were at the head of the third division, the most colorful of all for this contained the machine gun and motorcycle units as well as patrol wagons.

There were also the men of Divisions 3, 14 and 16, shotgun companies 1 and 2 and two companies from the traffic police marching back of Captain Bernie Hoppe.

The Italian societies paraded started at 2 o'clock at North End Park. The route lead through Hanover street to Washington to School to Beacon, to Berkeley to Chandler to Arlington square to Pleasant to Washington street, thence to Adams square and ended at Faneuil Hall, where speakers delivered addresses on Columbus.

The entire North End was decorated with gaily colored bunting and Italian and American flags entwined. The Italian district was thronged with Italians from all parts of New England, who were drawn to this that kept every Italian bandsman busy. City officials were honored.

Representatives of twenty-one different countries participated in the patriotic pageant, the Pan-American Festival, held at Parkman band stand.

HOUSE ON EGG ROCK TOPPLES INTO SEA

Several laborers narrowly escaped death when a house being moved from Nahant to Dorchester by a local contractor slipped from its moorings on Egg Rock, Nahant, many feet below into the harbor.

The house, used until recently as the abode of the Nahant lighthouse keeper, has been in process of removal from the rock for two weeks.

As workmen attempted to move it farther inland it suddenly toppled into the water crashing into fragments as it grated on the rocky ledge in its descent. Only a portion of the foundations and a tarn shell remain on the rock.

THEFT CHARGED TO PAROLED PRISONER

John Brogna of No. 1392 Columbus avenue, Roxbury, was arraigned in Brookline Court charged with the larceny of a handbag from No. 106 Harvard street, Brookline, several weeks ago. The case was filed and Brogna was returned to the Massachusetts Reformatory from which he was on parole at the time of the theft. Brogna has a record as a lodging house thief.

The Home of 40 Famous Brands of Clothes for Men and Young Men

Georges

To my friends and customers in BOSTON and vicinity:

It is with extreme pleasure that I announce that I have assumed the management of GEORGES, which opens this Friday, the 13th

JOSEPH DONOVAN

Why I am here:

"My whole success is bound up in the goodwill of those who for years have relied upon me for guidance in the selection of clothing. That reputation is one of my most jealously guarded possessions."

"For years it has been my ambition to be the manager of a great clothing institution, where my ideas and ideals could be put into practice."

"That opportunity finally presented itself to me with the coming of GEORGES to Boston—a chain-store clothing institution of great magnitude."

"After seeing how GEORGES stores in New York and other cities are operated; after seeing the wonderful display of 40 nationally famous brands of clothes, for men and young men, which this concern features; after seeing the splendid values GEORGES gives as a result of a vast purchasing power for this great chain of stores, and after observing how carefully every customer's interests are looked after—I realized that my opportunity had come. And here I am!"

"Associated with me is an organization of talented salesmen, chosen for their standing in the community and ability to serve customers intelligently."

"I extend to all my old friends and customers a cordial invitation to visit this Palace of Fashion (for such it truly is) and see for themselves the most remarkable display of famous brands of clothing and most attractive values ever shown under one roof in Boston—Opening Day, Friday, the 13th."

MOTHER LOVE DROVE BACK BAY WOMAN TO TRAGIC DEATH

GRIEVED OVER LOSS OF BABY

Mrs. Jane Duffy, Found Lifeless in Brookline Woods, Had Been in Poor Health

Mother love toda ywas revealed as the cause underlying the tragic death of a woman whose body was found lying in a clump of bushes in the R. G. Shaw estate, Brookline.

Grief over the death of a baby daughter grew into despair and then melancholia and, finally, drove Mrs. Jane Duffy of No. 67 Batavia street, to take her life.

Leaving her home she walked to the quiet of a woody section of the estate and there lay down to wait the end.

Such is the opinion of Medical Examiner William C. Mackie after examination of the skeleton and a talk with the dead woman's husband, James Duffy, of Combridge.

Further positive identification of the body was made by Duffy today.

The body was found by Leonard Anzivino, a farmer.

The woman had apparently been dead for three or four months. She was clad in a silk shirtwaist and black skirt, and a silver mesh hand bag hung suspended over her head from a branch of a bush.

Brookline police were summoned by Anzivino, made a short investigation and then announced they believe the body to be that of Mrs. Jane Duffy of No. 67 Batavia street, Back Bay.

Mrs. Duffy was reported missing from her home on June 11 of this year.

Anzivino threw an element of doubt over the police theory that the woman died while wandering through the woods, by saying that recently he had often gone over that stretch of land, and that he does not believe the body has been in the place where it found it for more than a few weeks.

Mrs. Duffy, prior to her disappearance, was in poor health and very despondent because of the death of her child. Her husband said, at the time he reported her disappearance, that she had told him:

"I'm going to find some quiet spot far away from civilization and lie down and die. I can't stand living any longer."

SEEK WOMAN IN LIQUOR THEFT

Springfield, Oct. 12.—When court convenes tomorrow it is expected that Federal authorities will ask for a bench warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Abraham Tollin of West Alvord street. Mrs. Tollin is wanted by the authorities for appearance before the grand jury to testify in the investigation of the alleged disappearance of $50,000 worth of liquor from the Bay State Storage and Warehouse.

The woman has been sought by the Federal officers for some time, but no trace of her has been found. Officials believe she has been spirited away by parties implicated in the alleged disappearance of the liquor.

Kidney Troubles Conquered or Money Back

Use Dr. Carey's Prescription No. 777

"For 40 years, said Dr. Carey, I have been prescribing my prescription No. 777 (known for years as Mayhorne) for kidney and bladder sickness and now that I have retired from active practice I have made arrangements with leading druggists to dispense this wonderful prescription at a moderate price, on the money back if disatisfied basis.

Beware of kidney disease—thousands die of it every year who ought to be enjoying the blessings of life and health. Watch the symptoms. If you have backache, aching before the eyes, puffy eyes, cranky feet or joints, kidney and bladder troubles. Hereafter you can always get this effective prescription in both liquid and tablet form at Epstein Drug Co., Armstrong Co.'s stores and all reliable pharmacists the country over.

"Thoughtful Mothers!" Are You One of Them?

All mothers—bless them—are loving and devoted. How often we are led to respect and admire the "thoughtful mother" who provides for emergencies and saves her loved ones from hours of suffering and herself from needless anxiety and sleepless vigil.

The season for colds, coughs, pneumonia, influenza and catarrhal ailments is drawing near; when the "thoughtful mother" makes up a full pint of pure, quickly effective cold and cough syrup made at home by using pure concentrated Essence Mentho-Laxene (2½ ozs.) mixed with simple sugar syrup or strained honey. A pint of sugar and a half pint of water makes the syrup in three minutes. The sweetest and the purest one then you need buy a pint bottle and is ready to use to prevent bad colds and coughs getting worse. The very first dose gives wonderful relief and in a few days all trace of the congestion and catarrhal symptoms are usually gone. The joy of seeing the quick freedom from colds, coughs and dangerous complications, the freedom from anxiety and sleepless nights, is say nothing of the real economy of this home remedy—is worth its weight in gold.

The drug store supplies the Essence Mentho-Laxene. "Best ever sold for cough or cold". Send 5 cts. in stamps for trial bottle to The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio

RUSSIANS NEAR AGREEMENT WITH FRANCE

Paris, Oct. 12 (By the Associated Press).—Greece has decided to sign the Mudania armistice convention and evacuate Thrace, the French Foreign Office was officially informed today.

Moscow, Oct. 12 (By International News Service).—The official newspaper Isvestia intimated today that Russia and France were moving towards an agreement. It quoted M. Herlot, a French representative in Russia, as saying:

"Russian and French interests in the Turkish straits are identical. Premier Poincare approves of this common interest. There is every indication that an agreement is near."

Trotzky Enthusiastic Over Army and Navy

Moscow, Oct. 12 (By the Associated Press).—"The Red army and navy have completed their first manoeuvres, and I am very much satisfied," War Minister Trotzky told the Congress of Textile Trade Union Workers upon his return from the South, bronzed from outdoor life.

"It was the allies who at Genoa refused our offer to consider disarmament," he added, "and we have drawn the conclusion that it is necessary for us to keep up an army 800,000 strong.

"The army is made up entirely of young men. In the Ukraine and Crimea I watched the 1921 class responding to the call to the colors in conformity with the new military service law, and I am glad to say I was tremendously impressed with the enthusiasm shown by all the recruits.

"I watched the Black Sea manoeuvres with great interest. It was marvelous, considering the fact that just a short time ago the navy was paralyzed.

"Since those days foreign ships have threatened Cronstadt, fired at Odessa and also sent us ultimatums. Consequently we have come to the conclusion we must have a navy in order to safeguard our shores."

Kemal Prevented War, Says Franklin Bouillon

Constantinople, Oct. 12 (By the Associated Press).—M. Franklin-Bouillon, one of the French delegates to the Mudania armistice conference, before sailing for Marseilles on the cruiser Metz, declared that the preservation of peace in the Near East was due to the efforts of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish National leader.

"If today an armistice has been signed," he said, "the credit for it belongs to Kemal, who at the most critical moment, when the Angora Assembly showed its determination to reject the allied terms, used all his authority as commander-in-chief of the Nationalist army and succeeded in effecting material modifications in the Deputies' views and demands without impairing the national pride.

"Kemal, by his strong will and extraordinary statesmanship, broke the stubbornness of the Assembly."

Allies Meet Next Week to Plan Peace Meeting

Paris, Oct. 12 (By International News Service).—Representatives of Great Britain and France will meet at Boulogne next week to arrange the details of the Near East peace conference, it was stated today by the Petit Parisien.

Scutari was selected by Lord Curzon, British Foreign Secretary, and Premier Poincare, on September 25, the day the Anglo-French note was sent to Angora, but since then objections have arisen on the part of the French that Scutari is too isolated.

Both the French and Italians are now insisting that an Italian city, probably Venice, be selected.

Greek Foreign Minister Says New War Looms

Athens, Oct. 12 (By International News Service).—"The evacuation of Thrace by the Greeks will probably sow the seeds of a new war, perhaps not far in the future," declared Foreign Minister Cannelloupoi today.

News of the New Near East armistice was received by the Greek public with resignation. Newspapers had prepared the public by saying an armistice was to be expected. They referred to it as an "unavoidable evil."

A decree of martial law was drawn up and submitted to King George, but has not yet been put into effect. It was feared that news of the Near East armistice might lead to rioting.

LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP FAST SANTE FE TRAIN

Chicago, Oct. 12 (By International News Service). — Seven passengers on board an eastbound Santa Fe California limited train were routed from their berths by a negro bandit and robbed of money and jewelry, according to information received at the offices of the Santa Fe here today.

Posses, organized near Lexington Junction, Mo., are combing the countryside for the bandit, who jumped from the train at the first stop out of Kansas City.

Armed with two revolvers, the bandit, whose face was covered with a handkerchief mask, went through two Pullman coaches, methodically hauling the passengers from their berths and taking their belongings. He tore rings from the fingers of women passengers.

The men passengers had no opportunity to offer resistance. The conductor did not order the train stopped.

Restaurants Will Call Stew 'Stew'; Nothing Else

Washington, Oct. 12.—Henceforth on the menu cards of American restaurants beef stew will be beef stew and not boeuf à la carcassonne inferieure, or something equally intriguing.

The National Restaurant Association decided today that "the menu shall be expressed in generally understood plain American terms."

CHECKER TITLE HOLDER GETS KEY OF CITY

John F. Horr of Buffalo, N. Y., champion checker player of America, was presented the official "key" of the city by Mayor Curley and wished success at the opening of the fifth annual tournament of the American Checker Association in the American House.

With Champion Horr were E. H. Green of Hannibal, Mo., president of the American Checker Club; H. B. Reynolds of Erie, Pa., a United States postoffice inspector; H. O. Newcomb of Akron, Ohio; W. W. Kentfield of Rochester, N. Y., a lawyer, and E. W. MacDonald, secretary of the Massachusetts Checker Club and the Wells Memorial Club.

The 8-day tournament will have afternoon and evening sessions and determine the new champion of America.

Horr won the title at Cedar Point, Ohio, two years ago from forty contestants. This is the first time in fifteen years that a national contest has been held in this city.

SPECTACLE ISLAND COTTAGES ERECTED

The work of providing clean, new, sanitary cottages for the families of the workers on Spectacle Island, where the municipal garbage rendering plant is located, is about completed, Mayor Curley recently found them quartered in indescribable filth on the abandoned city ferryboat Revere, which is moored to a wharf. The cottages will cost $35,000 and the Revere is to be destroyed.

JUNIOR-FRESHMAN RECEPTION AT B. U.

BEATEN BY PUBLICITY THREAT

Hub Pays 10 to 25 Per Cent. More to Live Because of Amazing Local Creed

By GRACE DESCHAMPS.

Why are we paying anywhere from 10 to 25 per cent. more for the privilege of living than the people of any other city in the country?

Greed—that's the answer.

Everybody's greedy in Boston — even the celebrated Boston minister who was getting 7 per cent. on a mortgage until the Commission on the Necessaries of Life threatened to give his tenants a public hearing. The commission is not attempting to preach a sermon. They are simply forming a conclusion after an intensive study of cold facts and figures.

REACTS ON BUSINESS.

"Is there more moral laxity in business in Boston than in other cities and sections?" asks Secretary Scanlan. "Or is it simply that we 'fall' easier? Both conclusions may be assumed."

It is greed, mainly, that is gradually forcing the great industries out of Massachusetts, according to Mr. Scanlan, who bases his conclusion on a comparison of living costs of Boston with other cities, during the past year.

But these very same industries, he points out, have contributed their own share toward a condition that is reacting like a boomerang upon them today.

"The big industries that are being hit by labor competition in sections where living costs are lower are in many cases just as much to blame as the dealers," says Mr. Scanlan. "They've all played the game. And when you summon one of them up on the carpet, they simply point to their neighbor who is doing likewise, and say: 'Why shouldn't I charge this price when he's doing it, too?'

PURSUES MIGRATION.

"But the goose that's laying the golden eggs—the great buying public of Boston—is going to fold up her wings and quit. The skilled workers are going to move farther West or to other sections where their wages will go farther, and New England is going to wake up to find itself just about off the map.

"And then the proprietors of restaurants, chain lunch rooms, unscrupulous rent hogs and the men who have based their profits on extortion are going to rub their eyes and look for their erstwhile 'suckers.'

"So-called 'service' concerns and 'service' departments of corporations all add their quota to swell the cost of distribution. The corner grocer who likes to have his customers call him up on the telephone for a yeast cake and ask to have it delivered, knows what he's doing. There is no item on your grocery bill actually designated as 'service,' but you are paying for it, just the same."

PREACHER WANTED 7 P. C.

To illustrate the total absence of principle on the part of landlords who are profiting by the housing situation, Mr. Scanlan cites a case brought to the attention of the commission recently, wherein a widely known Boston minister held a mortgage at 7 per cent. on property occupied by tenants, who appealed from the extortionate rents.

"But anything above 6 per cent. is usury," Mr. Scanlan protested to the estimable clergyman.

"I know it," returned the minister, "but others are getting it."

When the commission mentioned a public hearing on the matter, the minister hastily agreed to be satisfied with 6 per cent. on his money.

A local real estate man, when asked to explain the sudden boosting of rents on an apartment house he had bought, lied to the commission as to the price he paid.

"I paid $283,000 for that property" the man avowed," says Scanlan. "All the time he was lying to us, we knew that the house had been sold for $166,000. It is the same old story of greed."

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you biliary per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act like Nature to have his customers call him up on the telephone for a yeast cake and ask to have it delivered, knows what he's doing. There is no item on your grocery bill actually designated as 'service,' but you are paying for it, just the same."

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

LONDON BETS 'NO ELECTION BEFORE JAN. 1'

London, Oct. 12 (By the Associated Press).—Odds of nearly two to one against an election before the end of the year are being accepted in the London insurance market, notwithstanding the positive assertions in the press and in political circles that an appeal to the country before Christmas is inevitable.

It is stated in several quarters that the conservative leaders in the coalition cabinet continue loyal to the Premier, and that the situation in that repect is practically identical with the position when Lloyd George previously threatened to resign unless the conservatives gave greater support to his leadership.

It is said this loyalty on the part of his conservative colleagues is having a great influence on the Premier's attitude, and according to some versions he is relying upon it to secure the country's support and wreck in advance the conservative convention scheduled for the middle of November, which if held might attempt to compel the conservative leaders to resign their coalition posts.

BOMBERS RACE AS AIR MEET IS OPENED

Mount Clemens, Mich., Oct. 12.—Two races, one for multi-motored bomb airplanes and the other for light commercial craft, today ushered in the air racing meet at Selfridge Field. The meet closes Saturday with the Pulitzer trophy race.

More than 100 planes, representing the best fighting machines of the army and navy, aerial mail carriers and experimental craft, were here to compete.

Four Martin bombers and one Martin transport, each with two 400-horsepower Liberty motors, were the starters in the multi-motor plane race for the air mail trophy. The bombers were to fly ten times around a 24-mile triangular course. The three pylons must be turned at an altitude of less than 400 feet and on the last leg of each lap a balloon anchored at an altitude of 2,040 feet must be hurdled.

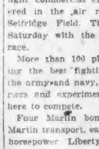
WAS A BROKEN-DOWN WOMAN

Then I Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicines



Donaldsonville, La.—"I write with pleasure to praise your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—which has done so much to restore my health. I was a broken-down woman until my husband brought me a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. I had been having pains every month and at intervals between, was weak and seemed to be smothering at times, but in a week I felt like another woman. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. It did me a lot of good too. I cannot praise your medicines too much and will be more than glad to recommend them to any woman who is suffering from female troubles. You may print my testimonial, as it is true."—Mrs. T. A. LANDRY, 612 Miss. St., Donaldsonville, La.

Note Mrs. Landry's words—"as it is true." Every letter recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is genuine. It is a statement telling the merits of these medicines just as the women in your own neighborhood tell each other.

AMERICAN GIRL HAS CHANCE TO BE QUEEN

By CLARA WOLD.
Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 12.—American girls, if you be beautiful and intelligent, I am able to bear this message:

There is a king with palpitating heart; hidden under a cloak of regal bashfulness who awaits you.

He has youth.
He has a throne.
He has ideals.
He is handsome.
He is Czar Boris of Bulgaria.

The queen of Bulgaria may be an American girl if—

LOVE A REQUISITE.

"I would just as soon marry an American girl if I loved her," he told me.

Where and when did ever regal love speak words of purer gold than those? What girl, awaiting her Prince Charming, could ask for a better answer: "If I loved her."

King Boris is not barreling a Queen's crown for a wealthy bride. His wife must be lovable. And he yearns for love. He wants none of these regal marriages of convenience and statecraft. He wants a wife he can love. The bride need not be rich, although that is no hindrance.

Borus is but twenty-eight. He not only is handsome, but radiates dignity and sincerity. He is impressive, and like all his family, dark skinned. His long, poetic face is more like his mother's than like the vigorous face and personality of his father.

King Boris introduced his sister Princess Eudoxia, 23, who was summoned from the kitchen of the palace where she was giving orders for the day. She resembles the King and is considered beautiful. Both have black hair and intensely blue eyes, whose perfunctoness of expression makes light conversation by a stranger difficult.

SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

The King has another sister, Nodejda, 22, and a brother, Prince Cyril, 24. But for the interest of her who may be queen I can assure there are no possible meddling sister "in-laws." Ex-Czar Ferdinand was exiled after the armistice in 1918 and lives in Switzerland. Boris' mother died in 1899.

The girl who marries King Boris must have an abundance of energy and follow many interests. The King thinks nothing of rising at 4 a. m. to catch a regular train, on which he travels like any Bulgarian peasant, to some part of the realm. Sometimes he travels by auto, which he always drives himself. More than anything, the King enjoys acting as engineer during stormy weather on one of the limited trains which goes to Constantinople.

KING IS BUSY.

King Boris keeps busy. His day's program includes reading newspapers and magazines published in six different languages. He understands and reads English perfectly, so an American bride would have no difficulty on that score. The king is recognized as the greatest botanist in Bulgaria.

Accused in Suit

ZOE BARNETT

Broadway actress with whom Frances Nordstrom alleges her husband has been living in filing a suit for divorce.

ACTRESS NAMES STAGE STAR IN DIVORCE SUIT

New York, Oct. 12.—Frances Nordstrom, actress who was married to William M. Pinkham on February 14, 1917, at Sacramento, Cal., has begun a suit for divorce against Mr. Pinkham in the Supreme Court of New York County.

The complaint alleges that the defendant has lived with Zoe Barnett, another actress, at a Broadway address for the last year, and that his alleged improprieties were continuous for five years before his course of conduct complained of was discovered by the plaintiff.

An affidavit by Carl Hegard attests the service of summons and complaint on the defendant, William M. Pinkham, by "personal delivery."

Frances Nordstrom is the daughter of the late Captain Charles E. Nordstrom, U. S. A. She made her debut on the stage with Mrs. Fiske in "Mary of Magdala." She has been leading woman in "The Man on the Box," "The Woman of Today," and also with the Burbank Stock Company in Los Angeles.

She also appeared as Olga in "The Devil" at the Garden Theatre.

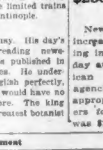
I First Compounded This Newer Form of Iron For My Own Neighbors

Their Praise of This Remarkable Remedy Has Spread So Rapidly That Now Over 4,000,000 People Use It Annually



Years ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors whowere always ailing, complaining and doctoring, without ever seeming to get any better. Both working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood, and that this iron in the blood is the great est of all devitalizing weakness es. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took metallic iron, which some physicians claim is not absorbed at all. In compounding this newer form of iron which I call Nuxated Iron, I employed a special form of iron, which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Unlike the older forms of iron, it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach, and it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. It is the people whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two 3-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. As astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, have greatly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking this newer form of iron. ONE DEAD, ONE DYING, FROM ALCOHOL

Three unidentified men were picked up unconscious by the police in various parts of the city. All three were suffering from alcoholism. One was pronounced dead at the City Hospital and another is in a dangerous condition, there.

Police of the Dedham Street Station found the body of a man on the sidewalk in front of No. 88 Waltham street. They believe he fell from the stairs leading to the house, as indicated by bruises on his body. He was rushed to the City Hospital, but efforts to revive him there failed and he was removed to the Southern Mortuary. He was about forty-eight years old. On his person were found cards upon which were the names Patrick Mahoney and Thomas J. Quinn of No. 422 Longwood avenue, Roxbury. Efforts of the police to locate these men failed. The dead man was five feet, nine inches tall, weighed 190 pounds, was of medium complexion, brown hair and mustache and wore a blue suit.

Police of the City Point Station found another unconscious in an alley at the corner of Second and P streets. He was taken to the City Hospital where little hope is held for his recovery.

A third unidentified man suffering from alcoholism was picked up by police of Station 10. He was found unconscious near the corner of Whittier and Hampshire streets. It is believed at the City Hospital he will recover.

AVIATOR HINTON AT LEEWARD ISLANDS

Fort-de-France, Martinique, Oct. 12 (By the Associated Press).—Great interest has been aroused here by the news that Lieutenant Walter Hinton, the American aviator who is making a flight from New York to Rio Janeiro, had arrived on the Island of Guadeloupe, in the Leeward Islands, and was preparing to leave for the windward group with Martinique as his first stop.

STARS WANDER LIKE TRAMPS IN THE SKY

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 12.—In commenting upon the recent discovery of a variable star almost a degree away from its cluster, Henry Norris Russell, director of the observatory and professor of astronomy at Princeton, vouchsafed the opinion today that such a star might wander away from its cluster and never return.

"When the variable stars on the outer edge of these clusters begin to move fast," Dr. Russell said, "they by centrifugal attraction of the clusters will bring them back to their original positions eventually.

"When a star inside the cluster begins to move at such a speed as to drive it out of the cluster, it is possible that it will become separated from the cluster. The natural forces of attraction in the universe will aid this star to escape.

"Stars are continually separating from their clusters and we find them in different positions, but only in the case of the variable stars can we be sure that they were formerly in clusters. These stars vary in degree of light at regular intervals and existed previously only in clusters. Only a very few of them ever escape."

BRITISH BEAUTY AFTER SCALP OF ELINOR GLYN

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 12. — Elinor Glyn is in a fair way to become the object of considerable criticism from English women, if she isn't made the object of open warfare.

All this as the result of a statement by the noted writer that English women are less beautiful than their American sisters.

"I do not think the English women look as attractive as they did," Mrs. Glyn stated on her return from America. "Somehow their heads do not seem to match their bodies.

RED HANDS AND STOOPED.

"And so many young women seem to affect a sort of stoop. No doubt it looks very charming while they are on the right side of twenty-five, but I am afraid they will be a very bad shape by the time they are forty.

"Then the hands of many of these otherwise elegant young women! It may seem, a trivial thing to mention, but I have been struck by the number whose hands are a sort of aggressive red.

"In matters like these English girls do not seem to be so 'soignees' as are American. You never see an American girl with anything but the most beautiful white hands and carefully kept nails.

"But I must say that English girls are not so much painted as are those of other countries."

STORM GATHERING.

Having made this courageous statement, Elinor Glyn is now sitting back waiting for the resultant explosion of feminine wrath. The dark war clouds are gathering.

GERMANY ACTS TO BOOST MARK VALUE

Berlin, Oct. 12.—Several drastic steps to prevent speculation in currency and the depreciation of the mark are to be taken by the government, according to the Lokal-Anzeiger today. The measures include a provision that foreign currency must be neither tendered nor accepted for purposes of speculation or hoarded or stored as a reserve. The duty of control would be laid upon the banks. Gold treasury bonds to the amount of 400,000,000 gold marks, bearing interest at 4 per cent, will be issued in order to counterbalance the acquisition of foreign currencies by the public.

AVIATOR HINTON LANDS AT MARTINIQUE

Fort de France, Martinique, Oct. 12 (by the Associated Press).—Lieutenant Walter Hinton, who is making a flight from New York to Rio Janeiro in the seaplane Santos Correia, II, arrived here in the harbor at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon from Pointe-a-Pitre, Guadeloupe. The flight took exactly two hours. Dispatches told of the great reception given Hinton at Pointe-a-Pitre on his arrival from Porto Rico at two o'clock yesterday afternoon.

WIFE OF RABBI KNOCKED DOWN BY MOTOR CAR

Miss Mollie Abrahamson of New York City and her sister, Mrs. Edith Seltzer, wife of Rabbi S. Seltzer of No. 40½ Glenway street, Dorchester, were knocked down and injured by an automobile today while crossing Blue Hill avenue at Glenway street.

Miss Abrahamson has concussion of the brain and multiple injuries. Her condition is serious. Mrs. Seltzer received a fractured right wrist and body bruises.

Mrs. Edith Seltzer

The women were walking across Blue Hill avenue at Glenway street when, according to the police, Abraham Zitter of Wheatland avenue, Dorchester, came along in his brother's automobile. The women, the police say, stepped directly in front of the machine and were knocked down.

Zitter stopped his car, but when he reached the women Alexander Solloway of Mattapan and Harry Litowsky of Laconia street, South End, had picked them up and placed them in their automobiles. Mrs. Seltzer was rushed to the City Hospital and her sister to the Elm Hill Hospital. Mrs. Seltzer went home after treatment.

and in which your life can never end, although you don't know exactly what it is to be ten trillion years from now, is the only interesting thing.

Scientists have extended its dimensions, and say it's two quintillion miles wider than they thought. Off to one side they have discovered a cluster of stars, giant suns, invisible to the strongest telescope, revealed by faint impression on a negative. The milky way, supposed to be all there is of our universe, is now declared to have a diameter of 400,000 parsecs. A "parsec" is one "light year." A light year is the distance that light travels in 365 days, going 186,000 miles a second—more than seven times around the earth for every jump of the second hand.

A few years ago the width of the milky way was fixed at 30,000 parsecs. This new discovery puts the outer boundary of our cosmic domain two quintillion miles farther off than we thought. To write a quintillion put down 1 and add 18 ciphers, American plan. The English quantillion is one million raised to the fifth power. To write that put down 1 followed by 30 ciphers.

This is a big universe, and it is foolish to set any limits to it, for with all respect to Einstein and his curvature of time and space there cannot be ANY limit to space or time. That is settled by the questions: "What is beyond your boundary? What comes AFTER the end of your time?"

Whatever is really good PAYS. Judge Gary of the big steel company devotes his time to "Safety First," translated into his more practical "Don't Get Hurt." The steel company spends a million dollars yearly fighting accidents, it has spent in all one hundred millions to make its gigantic plants and forests of huge machinery kill as few workers as possible.

Judge Gary will tell you that his company never made a better investment, even from the viewpoint of the most selfish stockholder. Every dollar spent to increase safety comes back in more work, greater efficiency, good interest on the investment.

In Austria a congress of transport workers winds up with singing and dancing, and the adoption of Walt Whitman as the poet laureate of Austrian labor. A better selection would be Victor Hugo, the workman's real poet. The French name probably would be unwelcome in Austria just now.

It is announced that the United States will discourage loans to European countries, including private loans, by bankers, tempted by high interest rates and lottery attachment.

Europe may say "this is financial tyranny," but it isn't. The idea is to discourage making conditions worse by spending more on war.

The individual would be justified in refusing to underwrite a firm of burglars, and this nation is certainly justified in forbidding its citizens to underwrite burglarizing war schemes across the ocean.

Millions for rebuilding, not a cent for more tearing down.

TEACH CHILDREN ART, SAYS SCULPTOR

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 12.—Speaking before the ninth recreation congress today on "Beauty in the Home Town," Lorado Taft, Chicago sculptor, declared the reaction of the average American to art is that of the doughboy who said when he saw his first French Cathedral:

"Gee! How did all that happen?"

Taft contended the only objects of beauty the average small town in America possessed were its trees and its girls. After the tourist had been shown the garage, the hotel and the cemetery the points of interest were exhausted, he said.

"What we need as a nation," said Mr. Taft, "is to teach our children to use their hands in delicate and skillful crafts; to give them more creative games. Our ideal today is expressed in the words of the man who said to his small son, 'Johnny, study hard, so some day you won't have to work with your hands.'"

KING ALEXANDER'S CHILD HIS HEIR

Athens, Oct. 12 (By the Associated Press) A royal decree published in the official gazette recognizes as valid the marriage of the late King Alexander and Mme. Aspasia Manos. By virtue of the decree, King Alexander's child, Alexandra Sophie, has no rights to the throne but becomes the legal heir of the deceased King and is entitled to an appanage, or allowance for maintenance out of the public revenues.

LIQUOR ON FOREIGN SHIPS RULING GOING TO SUPREME COURT

CUNARD LINE IN TEST CASE

Officials Hold Large Stocks of Liquor May Be Carried for "Medicinal" Purposes

Washington, Oct. 12 (By International News Service).—Attorneys for the Anchor and Cunard steamship companies were expected to confer today with Attorney-General Daugherty with respect to their efforts to set aside the ruling of the Department of Justice barring intoxicating liquor from foreign ships in American waters.

The Attorney-General is prepared to make a test case so that the way may be cleared for the United States Supreme Court to render a final decision on the validity of the Daugherty opinion.

Some officials of the Department of Justice were of the opinion that a temporary order would be issued in New York restraining prohibition officials from seizing liquor within the three-mile zone. If such an order is granted the Attorney-General will be required to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be granted and will immediately begin the fight which will end only with a decision by the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile the Treasury Department has gone ahead with its plan for putting the new regulations into effect.

Treasury officials hold today that both American and foreign ships can have liquor stocks for "medicinal" purposes. On the big liners this will allow legal possession and transportation of immense stocks of whiskey, brandy and other intoxicants.

It was officially announced at the Treasury Department today that no orders would be issued to prohibition agents to seize foreign ships found to be transporting liquor within the three-mile limit. The officers will be instructed to seize liquor but not the vessel.

25-MILE-HOUR LIMIT FOR FIRE AUTOS

As an aftermath to the accident at the Davis square railroad crossing in West Somerville on Monday night, when the fire department automobile, occupied by Deputy Chief Joseph A. Cribby and Hoseman George E. Shaw, went through the gates while responding to an alarm and was struck and hurled sixty feet by an outbound Arlington local train, the Somerville Board of Aldermen has unanimously adopted an order offered by Alderman Coldwell, that the Public Safety Committee consider equipping the fire apparatus with some contrivance that will limit the speed of fire autos to 25 miles an hour.

Boston Society Girl Back From Foreign Honeymoon, Says Betty Alden

MRS. GEORGE H. LYMAN, JR.

(Photo Copyright by Bachrach.)

By BETTY ALDEN.

BACK from their honeymoon abroad are the Louis B. McCagg, Jr., (Katherine Winslow), who are now domiciled at their new home in New York at No. 115 East Ninety-fifth street.

I remember that as the former "Kat" Winslow came up the aisle of St. Paul's Cathedral on the arm of her tall young husband she was one of the happiest looking brides I've ever seen. She has laughing blue eyes and blonde hair with just the merest tint of red in it which makes it most attractive.

It was last June that the youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs. George Scott Winslow of Chestnut street was married to Louis McCagg, Jr., of New York, who received his sheepskin from Harvard just a few days before he became a benedict. Young McCagg was captain of the Crimson's crew last year, and was noted as an athlete. I hear that he has entered the office of one of Gotham's banking houses, and certainly do all of his bride's friends wish him well, for "Kat" Winslow was one of the most likable girls of her year.

ANOTHER recently wedded pair are the George H. Lymans, Jr., (Eleanor Higginson), who have taken an apartment for the season at No. 191 Commonwealth avenue. Their marriage, naturally one of the most important of the Fall season, was also solemnized at St. Paul's.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, who are still at their Summer estate in Gloucester, plan to pass the Winter in California, where they are frequent visitors. They will spend only a very short time at their Winter home in Washington en route to the Pacific Coast.

EVIDENTLY "Eleo" Sears is back in Boston again, for I espied her the other afternoon coming out of a Boylston street shop.

The famous sportswoman, as simply and rather mannishly attired as ever, stepped into her long, gray car and sped away. I noted that the latter, which is of foreign make and has one of those awkward looking hoods, is now equipped with its cold weather top—sure sign that Winter is coming.

Miss Sears, whose town house is at No. 122 Beacon street, was among the Bostonians who went over to New York last week for the annual horse show held at the Piping Rock Club.

I HEAR that Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice is to give six lectures on his South American exploring expeditions in Boston during this Fall and Winter.

Dr. Rice and his wife are making a very long season of it at "Mirimar," which is one of the show places at Newport.

THE last of the three days on which society ran Jay's gown shop, and therewith obtained one-fifth of every dollar taken in for the benefit of the Children's Hospital, saw another smart group on duty "behind the counter."

Tall and slender Mrs. Freddie Bradlee, Jr., (Josephine de Gersdorff) used all her beguiling charms to sell gowns, as did also Mrs. David Little, Mrs. Bernard Weld, Mrs. Charlie Choate, Jr., and Miss Mary Weld. It was the former Miss de Gersdorff of New York who made such a lovely heroine for "Why Not," presented last Spring for the same charity.

Miss Andre Adie, daughter of the Andrew Adies, was there, too. Miss Adie, who is one of the smart set's cleverest equestriennes, is a tall girl, well set up, with a mass of fluffy blonde hair.

A trio of the most active "saleslad ies" throughout the entire three days have been the Misses Dorothy, Eleanor and Louise Batchelder, daughters of the George L. Batchelders. Miss Louise, the youngest, is among the debutantes of this season, and is one of the lucky ones chosen to membership this year in the Junior League. Another "debbie" who worked at Jay's was Miss Lucy Carnegie, daughter of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, 2d, whose older sister, Miss Nancy Carnegie, was also there.

CAPTAIN PHELAN WEDS MISS ELEANOR HORNE

Five hundred guests, including many army officers and members of the Governor's staff, well known Catholic clergymen and others were present at the wedding in Mary of the Angels' Church, Roxbury, today, of Miss Eleanor M. Horne, daughter of Mrs. Mathilda Horne of Roxbury, to Captain Francis X. Phelan, son of the late Patrick M. Phelan of Roslindale.

The Rev. Charles Finnegan performed the ceremony and celebrated the nuptial mass. A sister of the bride, Mrs. Theodore Gavin, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Kathryn Horne, another sister of the bride; Kathryn Fitzpatrick of Dorchester and Geraldine Ryan of Brookline. Captain Phelan's cousin, James J. Phelan, Jr., was the best man. The ushers were:

Charles A. Phelan, Edward M. Gallagher, Captain Francis V. Logan, Theodore E. Gavin, Joseph H. O'Neil, Jr., and Major William H. Blanchard of the Governor's staff.

TRIO INDICTED FOR STEALING AUTO TIRES

William Polito of Hull, who, with his brother, Paul, and Americo Russio, was indicted by the Plymouth Grand Jury on charge of stealing automobile tires, was arrested by the Weymouth police. The other two men are still at large. It is alleged that the trio broke into garages at South Hingham and Egypt and stole several automobile tires which were afterwards found in Hingham.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

A FEW years ago a clever woman writer and rising motion picture director were finding their professional co-operation so complete that they decided to make it permanent.

Since their marriage the joining of the talents has proved extraordinarily successful. These two are Mr. and Mrs. George Fitzmaurice (Guida Bergere), responsible, respectively, for the direction and scenario writing of George Fitzmaurice productions for Paramount.

"For seven years Mr. Fitzmaurice and I have been working together," says Miss Bergere, as she is professionally known. "And it has been our experience that two constructive artists with congenial ideas can do much more closely co-ordinated work as man and wife. But they must be congenial. I can imagine that such a combination under other circumstances might be very terrible."

The Fitzmaurices are now at the Lasky studio at Hollywood, where they have just finished "To Have and to Hold," which has Betty Compson and Bert Lytell in the featured roles.

MRS. PORTER TO FILM NOVELS

BIZARRE titles which mean nothing have been responsible for the failure of many good pictures in the opinion of Gene Stratton Porter, the novelist. Mrs. Porter is planning to produce picture adaptations of eight of her most popular novels and all eight will appear on the screen under the same names by which they are known to the public in book form. Production work on the first of these, "Michael O'Halloran," already is well under way at the Thomas H. Ince studios. Other novels which Mrs. Porter will produce under personal supervision are "The Girl of the Limberlost," "Laddie," "Her Father's Daughter," "At the Foot of the Rainbow," "The Harvester," "Daughter of the Land" and "The Firebird."

KID McCOY IN FILMS.

"KID" McCOY was engaged by Goldwyn to supervise the fight scenes in "Passions of the Sea" and he has been on the set much of the time since the return of Director Walsh and the cast from Tahiti. In anticipation of the former champion's ninth marriage, the company presented him with a bronze gladiator as a wedding present—a premature gift, it seems.

AND THE COAT CAME BACK!

NINE years ago Hobart Bosworth sold some of his old theatrical wardrobe to a small Los Angeles costume establishment.

Shortly after arriving at the Goldwyn studios from San Francisco to play in Marshall Neilan's "The Strangers' Banquet," Mr. Bosworth hied himself to the same costume house, which had grown into the largest establishment of its kind in the country.

The star described the kind of outfit he required for the Nelan characterization. A bundle of clothes was deposited on the counter before him and there on the top of the heap was a garment that looked exceedingly familiar.

Yes—it was the coat Mr. Bosworth had sold to them nine years ago, a bit frayed and worn, but still recognizable as the same old coat.

"I knew that coat when it was just a little vest," said Bosworth facetiously—and the man who had collected many a dollar's rental on the coat wondered what he meant.

NEW SCENIC STAR.

GEORGE BRONSON HOWARD, author of stage, screen and book successes, has been added to the scenario staff at Universal City. His outstanding screen authorship is considered to be "Come Through," which has just been filmed with Herbert Rawlinson as the star and released as "Don't Shoot." Mr. Howard finds himself at home as a celebrity in the scenario department at Universal City. George Randolph Chester, than whom there is none more Wallingford, has the adjoining office.

ONCE DROVE A TRUCK.

CULLEN LANDIS, who has the juvenile lead in the new Rupert Hughes picture, "Remembrance," which Goldwyn will release next week, began his histrionic career driving a truck for the old Balboa Company. He became an assistant property man, and then turned a camera crank for a while. Once he got a chance to act his future was assured. He was listed this year as one of the six most promising young screen players in the country.

HELD IN $5,000 BAIL ON STABBING CHARGE

AMERICANS IN PARIS WAITING FOR DIVORCE

By C. F. BERTELLI

Universal Service Correspondent.

(Special Cable to Universal Service.)

Paris, Oct. 12.—The Newton divorce, as revealed by Universal Service yesterday, was the ruling topic today in Paris salons. There is much comment on the ease and speed with which this seventh big American society divorce of this year in Paris was obtained.

The divorce was confirmed to me today by Mrs. Mildred Gautier Newton of New York when I saw her at the Ritz.

"Yes," she said. "I got my decree on the ninth, but I do not wish to give any details."

Her mother, Mrs. William Lowe Rice, was similarly mum, as was also her attorney, Charles Loeb.

Meanwhile Newton boarded the Homeric, telling friends that he and his wife "parted perfectly good friends."

Mrs. Newton informed me that she is staying in Paris "a long time," confirming the report that she is about to join the gay city's ever increasing colony of wealthy divorcees.

The grounds for the Newton divorce were the same as in the Graves, Terry and Cochran cases, and as in practically all the American divorces here. Newton formally declared his refusal to live with his wife, which under the French law makes the divorce practically automatic.

Under the French law, collusion is called "collaboration," and not only is not forbidden, but is even encouraged, the law taking the viewpoint that no husband and wife should remain married if both desire their freedom.

According to gossip in society there are more than a dozen wealthy American couples now residing in Paris solely for the purpose of obtaining divorces.

BOGUS $5 BILLS ARE PASSED HERE

Counterfeit $5 bills are being put into circulation in Boston and other New England cities, according to a warning issued to storekeepers today by John J. McGrath, head of the New England bureau of the United States secret service.

McGrath warns merchants to examine every $5 note that is offered in payment, and issues a special warning to owners of shops which deal in cigars, cigarettes and tobacco.

"The fake bills are excellent imitations of the $5 silver certificate which bears the head of the Indian Chief Onetata, except that the printing on the face is too dark and the green back is a little too light.

"With this explanation a quick examination and comparison with a good certificate will tell the merchant or salesman whether or not the bill is a counterfeit. The counterfeits are also just a fraction of an inch longer and wider than the government bills."

JAILED FOR STICKING TONGUE OUT AT GIRL

New York, Oct. 12.—Charged with sticking out his tongue at Mrs. Helena M. Peck, a pretty private secretary, Eugene Nichols, thirty-five, colored valet, was held in $300 bail in the Yorkville Court.

Atmosphere

You enter the house of a newcomer to your circle wondering whether the acquaintance so pleasantly begun will grow into a lasting friendship. Suddenly you realize that you have entered a house which is a home, and you hope that you will spend many hours there.

Nothing has happened. Nothing has been said as you sit waiting for your hostess. But there is an atmosphere of happiness surrounding you, and a sense of the fitness of things which makes words of welcome superfluous.

Idly you try to trace the reason for this feeling. Perhaps you realize that the stately secretary in the corner is the keynote of this contentment. Or it is the carved table made by a master hand of earlier days which is the high spot of charm.

People are learning that the pieces the cabinetmakers of other days wrought so lovingly have a beauty, dignity, and charm that will not be gainsaid. So they acquire a piece at a time and fit each one into the particular place in their home for which it seems predestined.

Our third floor contains many pieces of furniture fashioned in Colonial times which are of interest to those making a house into a home. Visitors who love the beautiful are always welcome.

HALL MURDER WITNESS IN COLLAPSE

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 12—Raymond Schneider, detained as a material witness in the Hall-Mills murder case, today collapsed in the Somerset County jail.

A physician who worked over him nearly half an hour before he was revived, stated that he was suffering from a severe nervous breakdown after the grilling to which he had been subjected.

It was Schneider's accusation that Clifford Hayes had slain the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, in mistake for another couple, that led to the arrest of Hayes on a charge of murder.

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain pastor, was brought back into the investigation today, when detectives visited her home and took a scarf and fawn-colored coat which she had dyed by a Philadelphia firm shortly after the murders were discovered.

The garments were taken to the offices of a firm of analytical chemists, with the request that they be analyzed to determine whether there was any human blood on the garments.

Mrs. Hall, according to witnesses, wore a coat of similar color early on the morning of September 15 when she was seen entering her home a few hours after the murders are known to have been committed.

HOLD IMPORTANT CLEW.

She has told the authorities she had been to the Church of St. John the Evangelist to seek Mr. Hall, worried because he failed to come home after brother, Willie Stevens, accompanied her to and from the church, she said. Witnesses who saw her enter declared she returned alone.

Detectives had known for some time that Mrs. Hall had sent the coat and scarf to Philadelphia to be dyed by a firm which she was said never to have patronized before, but until today apparently had not thought it worth while to follow up that bond more closely. They have, however, checked up on the clothing Willie Stevens, her eccentric brother, wore on the night of the murders.

Baroness Now in Boston Is Flapper From Dainty Sandals to Eyebrows

BARONESS LUCANDER

"I May Be Leetle, but I'm Toff," She Tells the Flap; Here to Study Typewriting

By THE FLAPPER.
(CARYL FRINK)

The Baroness would be tall and forbidding, even portly, maybe. She would ease into the room like a Rolls-Royce, if indeed she consented to ease in at all, and she would fix me with a lorgnette, and subdue me with a lot of choice French.

That's the way I had it all doped out as I waited for the Russian bride of the young Finnish nobleman, who is here to study English at Simmons College. I even thought some of ducking out the side door and telling the office the Baroness was out. Nothing makes me nervouser than haughty nobility.

Then I heard a flap-flap along the polished floor of the hallway and an snappy and flappy a flap as I've seen in months said, sweetly, if a wee bit brokenly:

"You wanted to see me?"

JUST LIKE FLAPPER.

I looked again. I'm afraid I stared. From her neatly plucked eyebrow to her Sally Sandals she was, this Baroness, a perfect picture of what a last-minute American flip-flap ought to look like. I couldn't help talking about it right off.

"My clothes," she smiled. "You like them? They are the cole-cole—what is it you say?"

"Col-ee-gi-ate!" she remembered, triumphantly.

She stood with her feet apart, her hands stretched down into her sweater pockets.

"I may be lee-tle," she smiled, "but I'm TOFF!"

While I was still catching my breath the demi-tasse Baroness explained.

TALKS GRAVELY.

"I heard a so lee'tle boy say that," she said. "And he was standing so when he said eet."

Then Baroness Thais Lucander slipped down into the depths of a divan and talked very gravely about everything, from politics to typewriting.

She spoke of her good fortune in escaping from the second Russian revolution; of the kindness of a Roumanian minister, who swore that she was a relative of his so that she could be slipped out of the country, of her work these last five years in China, where she has been employed by the Chinese government, and finally about America.

She is amazed to find that Americans do not talk of international affairs; that they do not know what is going on outside their own country.

"Americans have their homes, their families, their motor cars," said the Baroness, with expressive gestures of her small hands. "It is of these they talk. The great troubles outside their door do not move them. Perhaps it is as well. It is so they become prosperous and, buy their homes and their motor cars and their wonderful factories.

AH! AND CARBON COPIES.

"In Russia any group of young people will not be fifteen minutes together without discussing international affairs and national politics."

And now for the typewriting. The Baroness has come all the way from Shanghai to study English—and typewriting.

"Because," she says, "so many friends are waiting for letters from me about America. And on the typewrites—one can use carbon copies—is it not so?"

"In serving twelve years as a coordinating agency for hundreds of active organizations that work for the child and in stimulating nationally the further growth of such efforts, the association has rendered great service," the President wrote.

"You work is one which, in our country, cannot lack for financial support, unselfish personal aid of high leadership."

Dr. Alice Blood of Boston presided.

HARDING TO AID EUROPE IF SHE HELPS HERSELF

Washington, Oct. 12.—President Harding is willing to call an international economic conference any time world conditions appear to be favorable to its success.

But administration officials—from the President down—take the view that events in Europe in recent months have conclusively proved the wisdom of the American policy of abstention from Europe until Europe takes steps to help herself.

This was the reply given in official quarters today to inquiries about renewed reports in foreign capitals that the United States would shortly inaugurate a second Washington conference, like the arms parley of last year, to deal this time with the vexing economic problems that have brought Europe to the verge of another war. So circumstantial were the reports that from Tokio came press dispatches reporting the Japanese government as anticipating such an invitation and willing to accept it.

While willing to undertake such a project it is nevertheless the unanimous opinion of the President and advisers that world conditions are not now favorable to the success of any international conference, whether inaugurated by America or some other nation.

And until conditions abroad become more settled it was said emphatically the United States will pursue its present policy of aiding Europe's rehabilitation, wherever possible, but only in such ways as to bring no involvement in European bickerings and politics.

HARDING PRAISES HYGIENE BODY

Washington, Oct. 12.—The thirteenth annual meeting of the American Child Hygiene Association opened here today with the reading of a congratulatory message from President Harding to Secretary of Commerce Hoover, the retiring president of the association.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN WINS INJUNCTION

Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—A temporary injunction restraining the Western Productions Company, a motion picture concern, from exhibiting a film starring Charlie Amador under the name of Charles Aplin, has been granted Charlie Chaplin, motion picture comedian, in Superior Court here.

In the film Amador, or Aplin, wore a costume much the same as that commonly associated with Chaplin's motion pictures. Counsel for defendant asserted the costume was "old stuff," that Chaplin had "borrowed it from various actors down through the last half century," and, therefore, Amador or Aplin has as much right as Chaplin to it.

BOSTON FOOD FAIR

OCTOBER 9th TO OCTOBER 21st

HORTICULTURAL HALL BOSTON

GREATEST DISPLAY OF FOOD EVER SHOWN, SAY WOMEN

In thousands of homes throughout Greater Boston husbands and other members of the family are rustling through the cupboards seeking the materials for a hastily improvised meal, while the thousands of housewives who usually assume the responsibility of the evening meal throng around the booths of the Food Fair in Horticultural Hall, seeking information about the many methods and materials which are being demonstrated daily.

There is no denying the absorbing interest which is being manifested in this, the greatest of all the Food Fairs held under the auspices of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association. From the time the doors open in the morning, until closing time at night, the aisles and spaces surrounding the booths are crowded with interested womenfolk.

MILLION CARDS OUT.

In point of attendance, this show is expected to break all records for Boston Food Fairs. About a million admission cards have been distributed among the grocers—members of the association—and record throngs are expected each day.

The entire interior of the Horticultural Hall is an ideal setting for a beautiful fair. The booths are the most artistic and lend themselves perfectly both to the requirements of the exhibitors and to artistic effects. They are constructed of lattice and panel work and are trimmed with fireproof flowers which are so true to nature that even bees and birds might well be deceived.

The great dome rising far above the floors is festooned with beautiful flowers, so that the effect is a vast pergola, from which depend wisteria and other flowers and foliage. The floor, below, is a fairyland of foods of all kinds and descriptions.

EFFORTS OF 600 GROCERS.

Some 600 retail grocers in Greater Boston are associated with the conduct of the food fair this year. Frederick Wallace, president of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, has named James E. Sheridan of Hyde Park as the general manager of the fair.

The association was organized in January, 1851, having "for its prime motive a desire to rebuke fraud, remove abuses and protect honest dealers—the uplifting of the trade in its entirety." The food fair is notably a Boston institution and was designed primarily as a means of reunion for bringing together the grocers of New England. From its inception it has been accorded the front rank in the exhibition annals of the country as an educational, social and financial success and it is a matter of record that the most popular food products in the world today were successfully launched at the Boston food fairs.

RECORD OF SUCCESSES.

From and including the great Food and Health Exposition of 1891, the food fairs, held by the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, have been always successful in the fullest sense of the word. They have, in fact, constituted a line of successes.

With such a record and the prestige and resources possessed by the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, with its experience and close relationship with manufacturers, it is a foregone conclusion that the Food Fair of 1922 will stand as another brilliant accomplishment in the constellation of mighty successes which link 1891 with 1922.

There are many features at this show which distinguish it from all others. It is distinctly an exhibit of foods by manufacturers who represent all sections of the country. It is interesting and entertaining. And best of all, there are samples galore to be had from the wealth of attractive eatables arranged about the hall.

LECTURES DAILY.

Every afternoon and evening lectures on various topics of interest to housewives are given in the lecture hall in the basement. These lectures are illustrated by stereopticon slides and moving pictures and are extremely instructive. The lecturers, who in every case are experts, endeavor to make their talks educational to the highest degree. But everything is not serious, and the instructive program is prevented from becoming monotonous by the introduction of amusing films. The lecture course is practically a continuous moving picture program during the afternoon and evening.

PLEASING MUSICAL PROGRAM.

During the day and evening a musical program is furnished by the Edna Simmons Orchestra of Boston. The orchestra occupies a commanding position on the band stand erected especially for this occasion in the center of the main hall.

Horticultural Hall adapts itself perfectly to the demands of such an enterprise. It is neither too large nor too small. It gives ample space without affording too much room, so that visitors are brought close up to and in contact with exhibitors, who are thus enabled to directly reach the very people they desire to reach.

The 1922 Food Fair is as beautiful and attractive in every way as taste and skill and money can make it.

The Man in Charge

JAMES E. SHERIDAN

SLADE'S LABOR SAVING FOODS DISPLAYED

That the modern housewife is as much interested in the preparation of dainty desserts as were her sisters of several generations ago, is proved by the crowd which daily surrounds the booth of D. & L. Slade Company, at Space No. 42, Room A, at the Food Fair at Horticultural Hall, where Slade's Quick-Cooking Tapioca is being demonstrated.

The present day housewife is unwilling to spend long hours over a hot stove. She demands materials which may be prepared quickly and with a minimum of labor. And it is because the demonstrators at the Slade booth are showing how modern methods and modern materials permit the making of delicious desserts in a few minutes, that the hundreds of women attending the fair find this display of such absorbing interest.

In addition to the demonstration of Slade's Quick-Cooking Tapioca practical demonstrations are given of the many uses for Slade's prepared mustard and Slade's spices.

At the same space also is displayed and demonstrated the famous Bell's seasoning for poultry dressing. This product, which has been established for years, is a national favorite, and is the only poultry seasoning enjoying a national sale. The display shows the variety of pure spices which enter into its making.

In order to introduce these products to those who have not yet become acquainted with them, a special introductory offer has been made, good only during the progress of the Food Fair. Full details of this offer made will be had by inquiring at the Slade Booth, Space No. 42, in Room A.

Knows Details

JOHN H. BROWN

For many years secretary of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, whose thorough knowledge of the details of the show has caused exhibitors to declare: "In case of doubt, see Brown."

CARE REQUIRED IN CHOOSING COFFEE

The millions who could not start the day right without the usual morning cup of coffee have little knowledge of the intricate processes required in the preparation of the coffee bean before it is suitable for use in the percolator.

Like other industries the process has been reduced to a scientific basis, especially in the larger roasting plants, among the most prominent of which is the old New England house of W. S. Quinby & Company, whose product, La Touraine Coffee, is known and used all over America.

BEAN CAREFULLY SELECTED.

The story of the enormous business which W. S. Quinby and his associates have developed in less than a score of years to its present position of leadership is one of the outstanding romances of New England industry. The huge building at the corner of Atlantic avenue and India street is a worthy monument to their endeavors.

Every precaution is made to insure this uniform brand. For instance, there is a testing room, where tray after tray of green coffee lay while experts examine the beans for grade and quality. Then there is the testing room, where a number of cups of freshly made coffee are on a circular table before the "cup taster," whose trained sense of taste permits him to detect the slightest blemish. The roasted coffee is here put on trial for drinking qualities. The tester must be able to tell the difference in quality, blend, degree of roast and otherwise.

INTRICATE PROCESS.

The process of preparing the coffee for the public is intricate indeed. First foreign substances must be extracted from the green coffee beans. After it is perfectly clean it is placed in the great roasting ovens, where experts roast it according to special standards. Upon their skill and care in observing these specifications depends the uniformity of the finished product. Exactness in timing the roasting process and the manipulation of the fire is necessary to the development of aroma and flavor. This process liberates the gases within the coffee bean. It cooks the aromatic oils and makes them ready for instantaneous solution with boiling water after the cells in the beans have been thoroughly opened by grinding.

Then the freshly roasted beans pass through sundry intermediate processes until at length they are deposited in great metal bins on the floor immediately below. Here they are drawn from in putting up orders for the packing room. So closely does demand approach supply that the stock turns over every twenty-four hours. This is the reason that La Touraine products are so uniformly fresh.

Heads Association

FREDERICK WALLACE

Now serving his second year as president of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, whose reputation with the trade gives additional confidence and prestige to the Fair.

ARCHER FEELS OPTIMISM IS VINDICATED

Twenty-six years ago the Moxie Company threw away the key to Moxie Land, the big, white laboratory home of Moxie in Haverhill street, Boston.

This year Vice-President Frank M. Archer is still keeping open house, throwing open the Moxie herb laboratory to visitors who call there to see how Moxie is made.

Mr. Archer says that he believes that 1922 has already vindicated this open-house policy of the Moxie Company, as well as the consistent and habitual habit of optimism with which he has always endeavored to establish the firm's business policy and in its personal relations with employes, jobbers and dealers.

"We have been under some tension since January 1st, as we shipped more Moxie in the first eight months of 1921 than we did for the entire year of 1921," said Mr. Archer. "In fact, we made a gain in nine months over the whole year of nine hundred and forty-four carloads. All the Moxie that we ship from October 1st to January 1st, with one hundred and forty-four carloads added, will be a gain over the year 1921.

NOVEL EXHIBIT OF NIBROC TOWELS

One of the most interesting exhibits at the Boston Food Show is that of the Brown Company. Andrews Paper Company, who are displaying the Nibroc Kraft Towel. These towels will be of special interest to the housewife on account of their unlimited use in the home.

"For the kitchen there is nothing better for drying window panes, wiping dishes, polishing nickel, stoves, faucets and various other uses," says the local representative of Brown company. "No bathroom is complete without them, on account of their many features."

"Hospitals, public buildings and schools always insist on towels that are as near perfect as possible, and in these institutions the Nibroc is fast replacing other towels. For the automobile! Were you ever out on a country road with a blowout and not a towel, rag or anything else to wipe your hands? Enough said. They are also used for wiping the windshield and lamps.

"Nibroc towels are manufactured by Brown Company of Portland, Me., one of the largest companies in the country. They are of a beautiful golden brown color, which distinguishes them from other towels."

SPAGHETTI SAUCE PLEASES HOUSEWIVES

For many years tourists returning from Italy have told of the wonderful dishes of spaghetti served there. Thus the impression prevails that Italian spaghetti itself is superior, this is not so when compared with "Prince Superfine" macaroni or spaghetti.

The real delight is in the delicious sauce served with the spaghetti. Such a sauce has never before been available for use by the American housewife because the ingredients were difficult for her to obtain and the preparation was slow and expensive.

A celebrated chef now prepares and delivers this dish to the housewife, "ready to serve." Can be used either hot or cold and one 8 oz. jar will cover enough spaghetti for six to eight persons.

The Prince Macaroni Manufacturing Company, now one of the leading manufacturers in the United States, was founded and has steadily developed its business on the main idea that service and quality would build their business to national proportions.

Every effort is being made by the organization to not only maintain, but to better its established reputation as producers of superfine macaroni and spaghetti.

A modern daylight plant, located in the heart of Boston, provides a daily delivery service to points within forty miles of Boston.

LAST TAX CALL FOR EXEMPTED VETERANS

The last day in which to take advantage of the provisions of the law which gives a Veteran exemption of $3 in connection with the payment of the $5 poll tax is Sunday, October 15 and as a consequence two men of the Collecting Department have been detailed to work until Saturday at five o'clock and will receive all bills tendered in payment until that time.

"MACLAREN" CHEESE A HOUSEHOLD WORD

For a generation or more "MacLaren" has been a household word as the brand name for fancy cheese, but during the war it was not on the market. Last year the Charles E. Weeks Company opened up a distributing agency with a number of delivery trucks and today it is back in practically all the first-class stores of Boston and New England.

The same organization is also distributing the new five-pound "Kraft Loaf Cheese," which is a new package, tin foil being used instead of the old-fashioned cheesecloth wrapper. There is no rind whatever on the cheese and for that reason is extremely economical, not only to the housewife, but for the dealer who handles the cheese.

WHITE HOUSE IS FAVORITE OF 30 YEARS

For more than thirty years White House Coffee has been sold from coast to coast as a high quality product. All during that time the unvarying fine quality which characterized the first quantity manufactured has been maintained without deviation.

Processes have been changed and improved. Automatic machinery has been introduced into many parts of the processes of preparing the coffee beans to impart that appetizing aroma and pleasing flavor which has made and held so many friends for the White House brand.

Today Dwinnell-Wright Company are recognized as one of the largest coffee roasters in the world, manufacturers of a product that is limited only without a superior in the world.

Care—constant and unrelenting—is the watchword at the huge Dwinnell-Wright plants in Boston and Chicago. The exercise of care starts with the selection of the bean and never ceases until the package is sealed. And even in the matter of sealing the same careful attention to detail is observed. Each package is doubly wrapped and double sealed to preserve the full strength of the coffee and insuring economy and satisfaction in use.

When the first package of White House Coffee was put over, pictorial representations of the residence of the nation's chief executive were not so common as now. And the use of this trademark undoubtedly did more to acquaint the general public with the appearance of the "White House" than any other agency then in use. Today there is scarcely a grocery store in any of the forty-eight States where the coffee identified by the "White House" can not be purchased.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR BISHOP CODMAN

St. John's Episcopal Church, Roxbury, was crowded today at the seventh anniversary service held in memory of Bishop Robert Codman, a former rector of the church. The services were held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Catholic Club, of which he was a former president.

Crawford Farms Cheese Machine Attracts Crowd

One of the most interesting exhibits at the Food Fair is that at booth No 29, where the actual process of shaping and wrapping Crawford Farms Cheese is demonstrated daily. The bulk cheese is placed in the hopper of the machine, from one end of which it emerges in a long strip. It is automatically cut off at the proper weight and carried to an endless belt. From this belt it is removed by rosy cheeked girls, whose charming appearance vindicates the claim of those who advocate the healthfulness of dairy products, and wrapped in sanitary wrappers. The full production of one of these machines, at maximum speed is close to 2000 dozen packages of cheese per day.

FIRM OBSERVES 100 YEARS IN BUSINESS

How long is the average life of a business firm?

Statistics of the Massachusetts Commissioner of Corporations show that an incorporated business may live from a few minutes to 500 hundred years, and even longer. The average life, however, is little more than a year. This is because so many corporations are formed that never materialize into active business firms.

Of the 17,000 corporations registered in Massachusetts, 55 per cent. have been formed within the last 25 years.

Boston boasts a number of business houses, however, which have gone on for 100 years.

A. Stowell & Co., jewelers, at No 24 Winter Street, are celebrating their 100th anniversary this week. Just a century ago, John J. and Abel Stowell opened a jewelry shop in Charlestown. Their sons, Abel, Jr., and Alvah, succeeded them in the business, which grew so steadily that in 1863 a branch store was opened at No. 16 Winter street.

Charles B. Cook, now president of the corporation, entered the company's employ when fourteen years old. The house of Stowell has fitted out four generations of Boston people in engagement rings and wedding presents.

There are few Boston business firms that have been in existence as long as A. Stowell & Co. But one came to mind least are older. Chandler & Co., Inc., began catering to Boston fashion in 1810. Rias Pierce & Co., Ltd., food products started in 1815. The Chickering Piano Company was founded in 1823. R. H. Stearns Company is seventy-five years old. Lewandos, dyers and cleaners, were established in 1829.

Macullar & Parker have been selling clothing to Boston men for over a hundred years. Exactly one hundred years ago, the Boston Gas Light Company lit the flame of the first gas light in an apothecary's shop on Court street.

TO AWARD PRIZES AT BLUE RIBBON BOOTH

Back in 1913, Richard Hellmann decided that he would make a better salad dressing than any on the market, and that he succeeded is obvious from the remarkable growth of the business of the Blue Ribbon Mayonnaise. From a small store, nine years ago, with a single delivery wagon, the business of the Blue Ribbon product has expanded in such a degree that only recently this organization has moved into a new six-story, million dollar building. A fleet of 136 trucks, exclusive of ten five-ton trucks, is necessary to keep up with the demands of the public for this excellent article.

The success of the business can be attributed almost solely to the rigid adherence to the policy of "quality, first, last and all the time." Only pure and wholesome products go into the makeup of the dressing, and despite the fact that the rise in prices of the ingredients has caused an increase in the cost of manufacture, no substitutes enter into the making.

The local distribution is handled by Harry C. Page from No. 140 Worcester street. To keep up with the demand of New England Housewives he has had to add constantly to his fleet of automobile trucks and is now looking for larger quarters.

He will have a very original display at the Food Fair and has offered five valuable prizes to be awarded visitors to the Blue Ribbon booths.

MALT CEREAL HAS TEMPTING FLAVOR

The most important requirement for a breakfast food is a tempting flavor, declares a prominent dietician. And next in importance is that the food shall have real strength and body building properties.

It is in these two important characteristics that lies the secret of the growing demand for Malt Breakfast Food, a product prepared by the Malted Cereals Company at Burlington, Vermont, in the good old New England way.

No less interesting, to the average visitor at the Food Fair, is the ease with which this breakfast food may be prepared. It is easily digested and it "stays with" a person until time for the noon-day meal. The sweet, nut like flavor, makes it an especially desirable breakfast food for children, who eat it with relish and benefit from its excellent nourishing properties.

This district attorney was delegated by Governor Cox to officially represent the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at the convention, which will be in progress for the remainder of the week.

Leads B. U. Seniors

GRACE JERARDI

Leading the seniors through a successful year will be the task of Miss Grace Jerardi of Arlington who received one of the highest honors conferred by fellow-students when she was elected president of the senior class at the College of Liberal Arts of Boston University. Other officers who were elected for the current term are as follows: Vice-president, Philip Hennessey of Salem; treasurer, Roland D. Hussey of Malden; recording secretary, Inez Wingersky of Winthrop; corresponding secretary, Eleanor March of Brookline; and alternate Student Council representative, Dorothy Hagan of Dorchester.

PANCAKES QUICKLY MADE WITH HECKERS'

Cooler weather brings thoughts of many things besides coal, even in these days of a coal shortage. One of the foods which generations have come to look upon as a cold weather necessity is pancakes. And when pancakes are mentioned among housewives, Heckers' Old Homestead Pancake mixture is instantly thought of.

The pancakes made with Heckers' Old Homestead Pancake Mixture have the old time flavor, for the mixture is identically the same as that which made those satisfying pancakes of childhood memory. It makes the same appetizing, wholesome, light brown cakes, with only this difference: That now all that need be done is to add water, and the mixture is ready for the griddle.

The increasing demand for Heckers' Old Homestead Pancake Mixture throughout New England is the best evidence that the combination of the old fashioned flavor with the saving inducement offered thoroughly satisfies the critical judgment of New England housewives.

PURE MILK IS PERFECT FOOD FOR ALL

Milk is nature's one perfect food, suitable for infancy or old age, and equally healthful for all the ages in between. "Drink more milk," the slogan of milk producers and milk distributors has the hearty approval of the medical profession and of expert dieticians.

The exhibit of the Whiting Milk Companies, at Booth 155, is proving one of the most attractive at the Food Fair. It is surprising to note the number of people, who, attracted by the immaculate appearance of the booth and its attendants, are tempted to drink a glass of milk and then remark: "I never realized that milk could taste so good. Is this your regular milk?"

But the wholesome, appetizing flavor of Whiting Milk—and if you don't think that milk has an appetizing flavor, buy a glass at the booth—is considered of less importance by the Whiting Companies than the attainment of absolute purity of the product.

For while pure milk is the greatest of foods, impure milk is highly dangerous. To insure the purity and nourishing qualities of every bottle of milk marketed under the Whiting label, every quart of milk is thoroughly pasteurized. The dairies are regularly inspected, and only those which are kept immaculate are permitted to furnish milk to the Whiting Companies. Every precaution is taken to insure a product that may be fed with safety to the merest infant.

Among the souvenirs available at the Whiting booth is a buttonhook and ribbon to which a cow bell is attached, also an educational health purse of interest to children.

MARSHMALLO' MIST FOR TASTY DAINTIES

The growing popularity of marshmallow for use in making dainty desserts is due in large part to the splendid quality of the original and genuine marshmallow filling, "Marshmallo' Mist."

Despite the many imitations of this product which have been put upon the market, the rapid increases in the demand for "Marshmallo' Mist" is proof that New England housewives are able to discriminate and prefer quality products.

"Marshmallow Mat" is being demonstrated daily at Booth No 165, where experts are glad to give detailed information regarding the many uses to which this first-aid to the busy housewives can be put. A folder containing many excellent recipes may be obtained by inquiry at the booth.

BARONESS DE HULLUB.

New York, Oct. 12.—Bernard Landino says he taught singing to Baroness de Hullub so that she learned how to use her voice to best advantage.

Landino also says the Baroness owes him $1,000 for the lessons he gave her.

But the Baroness, also known on the stage as Harriet Lorraine, denies. She exclaims vivaciously:

"I owe him anyth ng for h s teaching me to sing! Why, I taught him more than he taught me."

O'Connor of No. 50 Monastery road, Brighton, well-known Boston newspaperman, who has been connected with the State House News Service for the past seven years. Miss Maher, a daughter of Mrs. Catherine Maher, has been active in the Women's Catholic Club of Charlestown and the St. Francis deSales Church.

WOMAN'S CRY CLEW IN BEACH MYSTERY

Gloucester, Oct. 12.—Report of a woman's cry for help gave the police today a new clew in the mystery of the woman whose body was found in the surf off Salt Island last week.

A fisherman said he heard a woman scream as she sped over the road in an automobile with three men, two of whom were fighting with her.

The police pushed their probe to another coast town, where they hope to obtain information as to the identity of those in the automobile.

MAYOR OF CONCORD ASKS U. S. STRIKE AID

Concord, N. H., Oct. 12.—In an effort to have the United States government intervene in the strike situation, Mayor Henry F. Chamberlain filed a complaint with United States Marshal Thomas H. Donnelly against the Boston & Maine railroad strikers.

He asserts that the strikers have disobeyed the orders of the Daugherty injunction. The underlying motive of the complaint is understood to be to have the city relieved of the expense of keeping State troops on guard at the railroad shops.

It was reported that several men broke the guard-men's dead line at the shops and several shots were fired by the troops before the intruders departed.

Double Package — Double Sealed

About Packing Coffee

FOR over seventy years we have been selecting, roasting, and marketing high grade coffees. Naturally, one of our biggest problems was how to place our coffee in perfect condition in the hands of our customers.

We experimented with cans and hermetically sealed bags, and the high cost of the one offset the inefficiency of the other. We refused to include the expense of the can in the price of the coffee. And cans cost money.

At last we discovered that coffee double-sealed and double-packed preserved all the coffee aroma, all the flavor, all the goodness, so that it comes to you as fresh and fragrant as it comes from our big roasting ovens.

That is the story of the now famous White House Coffee package and one reason why the quality never varies. And the big reason why White House Coffee is as fine a coffee as you can buy at any price.

The package is important, but what is put into it and what you get out of it is more important to you. Try a pound of White House Coffee today.

Be sure the "White House" is on every label 1, 2 and 3 lb. packages only

HUNDREDS MORE AT ORPHEUM

"Forget-Me-Not" Voted a "Corker" by Boys of Angel Guardian Home

A ride in twenty-two automobiles, donated by the C. P. Rockwell, Inc., made two hundred and ten orphan boys happy while passing through Boston streets to see the famous film "Forget-Me-Not," now being shown at the Orpheum Theatre, where they were guests of the Boston American and the theatre management.

Very few of these orphans had ever had a ride in an automobile, so they said upon being questioned.

FIND GREAT TREAT.

Gee, isn't it great," yelled one little orphan as he peered out of the windows of the car and saw something on the sidewalk which took his eyes.

The cars were new models and they very make-up took with the boys. At the theatre they saw what they had heard from the boys who attended the show Tuesday, that the film "was a corker."

So it was to them. They piled into the theatre where seats were reserved for them and then just glued their eyes on the stage.

Forget-Me-Not has made a deep impression with the orphans. Those who have already attended from the same institution could not talk enough about the film. They liked the musicians who followed too.

For over two hours they sat in the theatre and did everything they saw and were afterwards treated to many fine things at the Ice Home on Shawmut street. Dozens from many floors have really poured into the place when they came known that the orphans were to be treated to a luncheon.

ELKS GENEROUS.

The Elks have been unremitting in their attention to the children.

There was milk from the Walker-Gordon laboratories — one thousand quarts in four days — candy from A. S. Pierce Company, the Boston Mattress Company and the Moxie Company. The latter concern heated the automobile line dark with their horns mounted on a machine.

The F. K. Chewing Sweets were distributed liberally among the boys at the theatre and at the Elks home through the kindness of the Wilson Bros., Jr., Company.

Raymond at kept his eye on the orphans when they played and had candy and refreshments to go around. Peter the Florist did not forget that boys want candy, from unknown donors.

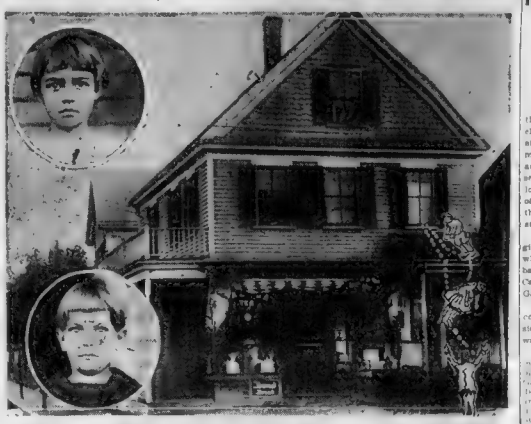
William Dwyer and others from the Orpheum Theatre rendered many musical selections which made the youngsters enthusiastic and they always yelled for more.

Councilman "Jerry" Watson made a speech and told the orphans he was a boy again in their shoes.

THRILLING RESCUE AT FIRE



WHERE CHILDREN LEAPED TO SAFETY AT NO. CAMBRIDGE

Photo-diagram shows how Alice, eight, and Edgar, five, children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gagne, No. 73 Dudley street, North Cambridge, jumped into the arms of Patrick Kedian, a passing pedestrian, when flames swept through their home, cutting off their escape. The little ones miraculously escaped unharmed. Insets are the two children who figured in the spectacular rescues.

FATHER BURNED IN RESCUE OF CHILDREN

Two little children were carried through a blazing apartment, as elder sister jumped from a second story window into the arms of a man standing in the street below, and three adults were burned, two seriously, when an explosion following a fire occurred in the kitchen of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gagne on the second floor of No. 73 Dudley street, North Cambridge.

Richard Gagne, his wife, Mrs. Virginia Gagne, and Walter J. Simond who lives on the floor below, were badly burned and were taken to the Cambridge City Hospital. The Gagne children escaped uninjured.

Gagne was mixing shellac with alcohol on a gas stove when the explosion occurred. Instantly the kitchen was enveloped in flames.

The father rushed into an adjoining bedroom where Marie, two years old, and Joseph, four, were asleep, gathering them in his arms he dashed through the blazing kitchen and down the stairs. His own clothing caught fire and he was severely burned but he managed to save his children.

Alice, eight years old asleep in another room, was aroused by the explosion. She ran to the second floor veranda and leaped to the street.

Mrs. Virginia Gagne was burned about the feet as she made her escape from the blazing apartment.

$1,000 Bill, Found by Needy Vermont Man, Awaits Claimant

Bethel, Vt., Oct. 12.—Noah Goddard of Plymouth, sixty-five years old, who has lived in semi-poverty for several years, maintaining a constant struggle to support his two children, found a $1,000 bill on the road near the Bridgewater line.

Mr. Goddard took the money to a local store and turned it over to the proprietor, asking him to keep it until the owner claimed it.

The spot where the bill was found is on the main highway from White River Junction, and is well traveled by motorists. It is thought a gang of rum runners may have lost it from their machine.

Ernest Grimm, Optician, Adds Praise to 'Green'

NOW the opticians tell us it's easy to keep your eyes on the Boston American Green Edition.

"When you read from a white sheet, especially when you are physically tired, note how your eyes tend to wander off the paper," suggests Ernest A. Grimm, who for eighteen years has been an optician at No. 373 Washington street.

"You will find that an appreciable amount of exertion is used in focusing your eyes on the paper. If you were up late last night or have spent a hard day's work the required amount of exertion is greater. This is because of the glare from the white paper.

"If you read from a green sheet, however, the glare is absent, and you will not find your eyes wandering off the paper. Add to this the interesting, last-minute news that appears in the Boston American Green Edition, and you won't be able to take your eyes off the paper for the prettiest flapper in Boston."

BRITAIN PAYS $50,000,000 ON MONDAY

London, Oct. 12 (By the Associated Press.)—Checks for $50,000,000 are rare even in these days of big finance, but a check for that amount will be turned over to the United States government Monday on account of Great Britain's interest on her war loan from the United States, it is stated by officials here.

This interesting slip of paper, which will probably be preserved as a historical relic after it has served its purpose, will be drawn on the British Treasury account with J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York. It will be made out in New York and signed for the British Treasury by the Morgan company. The check will be drawn in favor of the general account of the Treasurer of the United States in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

In connection with this payment it is stated that the British treasury has for some time gradually been accumulating dollars, building up its dollar resources in the United States, partly by shipments of gold from this country, sold to the United States mint for dollars. Any dollars Great Britain secures otherwise are obtained by purchase in the exchange market.

TWO FIREMEN WIN PROMOTIONS

Two promotions and the transfers of seven officers, six engineers and twenty privates are announced in general orders issued by Fire Commissioner Glynn.

Charles A. Fernald is made captain and James C. Taylor is made lieutenant. The former will take over Ladder 15, Boylston and Hereford streets, succeeding from Engine 41, Brighton. Taylor will be with Engine 22 and Ladder 13, Warren avenue, South End. Both promotions came through the death of Captain William C. Egan, killed two weeks ago.

A number of the transfers have been made for the "good of the service." This is supposed to apply only to privates and not to officers.

GRAPPLERS BATTLE AT THE ARENA TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

The wrestlers will hold the stage tonight. The Old Howard management has a bang-up, all-star carnival billed for the Boston Arena.

There will be plenty of act on and an abundance of thrills. A big holiday crowd will enjoy the sport. As there are more than 8,000 seats at the Arena there will be an ideal ringside view for all.

Stanislaus Zbyszko, former world's wrestling champion, will meet Ivan Linow in the feature match of the evening. This tussle will be to a positive finish, best two falls out of three.

Zbyszko is the grand old man of the wrestling game. At forty-four forty he is feared by the world's leading grapplers. There are many close followers of the game who believe that Zbyszko would be able to beat Strangler Lewis if these two men were to battle again.

I now am very anxious to get a shot at Lewis. He believes that his aggressive style of mat work would enable him to conquer the champion.

Stanislaus Zbyszko

Strangler Lewis has wired to Matchmaker Paul Bowser of the Old Howard stating that he is ready to meet the winner of the Zbyszko-Linow match. This will be pleasant news to the rival grapplers, and as a result they are sure to extend themselves to the limit this p. m. in an effort to gain the victory.

George Kotsonaros, Greek light heavyweight champion, who has won four straight bouts in Boston and also defeated Jim Londos, is the dad of the local Greek. If Kotsonaros wins over Gardini he will demand a match with Renato Gardini. Kotsonaros has also challenged Jim Londos, champion, large number to join the arena per [illegible] to come to the Arena to weigh in order to get a line on Kotsonaros.

George Kotsonaros

John Terrell, Boston welterweight, who [illegible] Tommy Watson at Worcester [illegible] Terrell is one of the [illegible] per cent.

"I am [illegible] the man who defeated [illegible] Ernie Rogers when they [illegible] he had Johnny Wilson at Columbus, Ohio, is in charge of Nate Siegal's training for the latter's bout with Downes at the Boston Arena next Monday night.

"I figure Siegal will defeat Downes," said Gardner, "Downey, of course, is a terrific puncher," continued Jimmy. "He can sock harder than any man in the middleweight division. He does his heavy cannonading with his right. His left hand is not very effective. I don't believe a right hand puncher can defeat Siegal.

"Nate proved his ability to conquer the right handers when he bested Tommy Robson. The wise boys had it all figured out how Robson would punch Siegal as will. Tommy, as everybody knows, must score with his right to get into the running. Siegal was smart enough to keep inside of Robson's right and hammer away to the body. The result was that Siegal was well out front when festivities ended.

"Siegal is a much better fighter since he branched forth as a middleweight. He used to weigh [illegible] pounding down to the welterweight limit. He left his strength and stamina on the road. As a middleweight, Nate is as powerful as a young bear. Downey will discover this to his sorrow Monday night."

with a wrecking show as he arrived at the office today. He also had his attention called to the Terry Martin-Irish Johnny Curtin bout, which is billed for New York.

"I am picking Stanislaus Zbyszko to win over Ivan Linow at the Arena tonight," said Jack. "It will be a tough task but Big Zibby will keep Father Time right in the face as it were.

"John Grandovitch will give George Kotsonaros the toughest battle the Greek champion has had since he invaded New England. But I think Kotsonaros will win.

Terry Martin and Irish Johnny Curtin will open the Polo Grounds as a boxing arena tonight. And Martin will win."

WESLEYAN HAS GOOD CHANCE ON SATURDAY

Middletown, Ct., Oct. 12—A hard scrimmage with the freshmen was indulged in by Wesleyan in preparation for the Columbia contest on Saturday. King and Lester were used at [illegible] and Peck opened up the offensive with some good forward passing.

Coach Martin seemed pleased with the good showing and when asked was unwilling to make any predictions, but said his team had a chance against Columbia.

CORRIGAN WILL DRAW NOTICE OF FANS

By ART CURLY.

[illegible] soccer player, who will attract a lot of attention around the [illegible] season is Jack Corrigan of the Athol Worsted eleven [illegible] champs came to the Fore River team two seasons ago from the Bolona Dry Dock of New York and played several fine games as centre forward. Last season he was with the Fall River United, alternating as centre with Connie Lynch, but this season he is in his natural position as a half-back.

Jack Corrigan

He makes a fine centre forward but is a real star as a halfback. He has speed to burn and shoots with either foot and the ball travels like a bullet. There are few halfbacks playing this game in this neck of the woods that take advantage of an opportunity to dash in amongst the forwards and take a shot for the goal. Corrigan, however, is one who does and if Larry Kane doesn't watch his heels he will be run down.

SOCCER TEAM HAS MANY STARS

Forty-five candidates are out for the eleven positions on the Massachusetts Institute of Technology soccer team. Coaching the team this year is last year's captain, G. Atalanta, who has had fourteen years' experience in soccer. With two exceptions, all of last year's varsity team will be available this year. Leading this year's aggregation is F. de la Macorra. Captain Macorra expects to clean up this year with the aid of Sousa, Santos, Duval, Querero, Torres, Murdock, Sun, and Kunstman. This cosmopolitan line-up will oppose Springfield on October 27, Amherst, October 28, and the United States Military Academy at West Point, November 9.

Medford Boxer Has Already Battled Twenty-one and a Half Tons of Rivals

By RINGSIDE.

Rather a tough assignment, eh?

It would be for the ordinary individual. But not for Billy Woods of Manchester, N. H., Medford and other places.

That's Wood's record to date. The figures:

Men		Weight	Pounds
100	at	133	13,300
50	at	145	7,250
50	at	160	8,000
50	at	165	8,250
37	at	170	6,290
			43,090

BATTLED RUGGED BOXERS.

Some of his opponents were: Johnny Mellow, Nap La Joy, Mickey Fitzsimmons, Kid Pooler, Freddy Yeile, Young Stroner, Chick West, Dummy Burns, Sailor Joe Gibbs, Young Goulor, Jack McCarthy, Aleck Trambitas, Young Gould, South Boston Johnny Downes, Mickey Kirst, Cye Ketcher, Mickey Devine, Harry Silva, K. O. Charlie Miller, Irish Patsy Kline, Cleveland Johnny Downes, Mickey Forkins, Johnny Avellar, Eddie Mahoney, Joe Gibbs, Tommy McFarland, Young Blades, Dummy Burns, Billy Duffy, Kid Allen, Sailor Darden, Nate Siegel, Shaver O'Brien and Willie Roberts.

Out of 187 contests he has only lost 13 fights.

He has fought 27 draws.

This leaves him winning 143 bouts.

He has never refused an opportunity to box, no matter how short the notice was or who his opponent might be.

He is the welterweight, middleweight and heavyweight champion of New Hampshire and Maine.

Woods boxes so often that he does most of his training in Pullmans.

He has so little time to himself that he can't spend a great deal of his ring earnings. Lack of time for recreation is one of the reasons Rockefeller became an oil can.

Woods doesn't care whether Siegel or Shevlin or Kid McGee is his next opponent.

"When do I fight?" is all he ever asks Manager Jackie Williams.

MEETS ALL COMERS.

He doesn't care who the fellow in the other corner is.

Which is probably why Woods is so popular with the promoters.

But coming back to the original question:

2 BIG MEETS FOR TECH X-COUNTRY

Prospects indicate a strong cross-country team for Technology. Forty candidates sported over the Belmont course on a preliminary run. Captain "Bob" Hendrie, Sanborn, Robertson, Poor, Holt and MacIntyre are experienced varsity men while Parkinson, Gardner and Bemis have come up from the freshman team.

"Bob" Hendrie.

Captain Hendrie, Sanborn and MacIntyre are rapidly recovering from injuries sustained during the initial training. Tech will meet Cornell at Cornell October 21, and Harvard and Dartmouth in a triangular meet over the Belmont course October 28.

"Johnny Karr talking. Just got in from Cleveland. Am in great shape. You can put it as strong as you like that I'll beat Jock Malone at the Armory Club So long."

Then Alex McLean called to say a few words about the wonderful condition Malone and Karr were in.

"It's one of the best bouts that could be arranged. It will furnish as many thrills as Shevlin and Slade did."

This from Alex.

Times all the dope.

Now pick the winner, IF YOU CAN.

HUGGINS SIGNS AGAIN WITH THE YANKS

New York Oct. 12—Miller Huggins will manage the Yankees next season. This was decided at a conference held in the headquarters of the New York American League Baseball club and was attended by Mr. Huggins and the owners of the Yankees, Messrs. Ruppert and Til Huston.

The annual rumor was forthcoming from the Yankee office, merely a case of Huggins had been reengaged. This is tantamount to signing a new contract, for, if a satisfactory agreement is arrived at the terms are signed and a satisfactory agreement is nearly always come to.

The reengagement of Huggins follows closely on the report that Colonel Ruppert would be dissatisfied in 1923. It was rumored that Huston was tearing the club asunder and that Huggins could not cope with the players of the insurgent faction.

Dovetailing the report that Huggins was headed for baseball obliv[ion] came a statement from Colonel Ruppert who said that Huggins would remain as manager for the season of 1923. He was asked if it was settled permanently that Huggins would be at the helm next year, to which he would make answer only that Huggins was known as a man who kept his word, from his statement.

This was only a few days after it came out that Huston had threatened to step in and take charge of the club unless Huggins was reinstated. Huston's threat was made in the spring. He succeeded in getting in the position after W. B. Ruppert had turned in a couple of seasons.

Huggins has just completed five years as the manager of the Yankees. He came here from a position in charge of the Cardinals, and after being in charge of the Yankees for the spring he succeeded Huston in the position after W. B. Ruppert had turned in a couple of seasons.

WILEY CAN'T KEEP OUT OF BIKE GAME;

The lure of the game has caused more than one veteran athlete to return to his former haunts. George Wiley, the veteran bike rider who is to re-don the silk trousers has been one of the most popular pedal pushers, and is early and Skinner retirement was a sad blow to the bike game. Apparently that kiddish feeling will be present at the Velodrome today. Competing with Wiley will be George Chapman, Clarence Carman, Frank Corry and Victor Madonia.

HOLIDAY CROWD OUT TO WITNESS FIRST FISHERMEN'S RACE

ITALIAN SOCIETIES HONOR MEMORY OF COLUMBUS! A feature of the day's celebration was the auto parade of members of Boston Italian societies to lay wreaths on Columbus, Washington and Lincoln statues, at Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Public Garden and Park square. Photograph shows Louise Brogunne, placing wreath at base of statue of Columbus. She was accompanied by many Italians in costumes of the time of the great discoverer.

CHARMING ENOUGH TO Suit the Most Discriminating Taste! Paris nods approval of this chic suit of navy blue silk serge trimmed with a touch of red chiffon. The garment is a new importation by Marion Davies, Cosmopolitan star. The hat is of navy blue taffeta trimmed with white chiffon.

'GO WEST, Young Man, Go West!' Is Passe these cool days for the balmy South beckons with a vampirish finger. And that's one of the reasons why the fashion experts have put their heads together and decreed that Milady's wardrobe will not be complete unless she has the latest model sea garment tucked in her little bag. The design is Californian. Palm Beach and Miami officials have o. k.'d it. 'Nuff sed.

STORMS JUMP FISH PRICES TO WAR-TIME LEVEL! Ten days ago fishermen complained that they would dump their fish rather than accept the low prices then prevailing. They make no such threat today. In fact, very little fish is being received in Boston, forcing up the price to an almost prohibitive point. Storms and fogs off the fishing banks are blamed. Photo shows one fisherman with part of a "catch."

Start This World-Famous Story Today

The story opens with an account of the Caskoden family, one of whom, Edwin—who tells the story of Princess Mary Tudor and Charles Brandon—holds a place at the court of Henry VIII. News of a terrible duel reaches the King. Of four combatants, only two come out alive, one so horribly disfigured that he might better have been killed. The survivor, Charles Brandon, is much talked about for his heroism. He appears at a tourney at Westminster. Mary begs the King to tell her his name. He refuses. Brandon meets Caskoden in London and they become friends. Brandon tells him his hopes and plans. Mary meets Brandon, snubs him, later apologizes.

"I CAN'T believe that," responded Brandon, looking at Jane with a softening glance quite too admiring and commendatory to suit me; for I was a jealous little devil.

The eyebrows went up again.

"Oh! you think she doesn't? Well, in truth, Master Brandon, there is one feeling that cannot be laid at your door; you are no flatterer." For answer Brandon laughed, and that gave us the cue, and away we went in a rippling chorus all about nothing. Some persons may call our laughter foolish but there are others who consider it the height of all wisdom. St George! I'd give my Garter for just one other laugh like that, for just one other hour of youth's dancing blood and glowing soul warmth, of sweet, unconscious, happy heart-beat and parallel-creating joy in everything.

After a few minutes of gay conversation, in which we all joined, Mary asked: "What shall we do? Will one of you suggest something?"

Jane sat there looking so demure you would have thought mischief could not live within a league of her, but those very demure girls are nearly always dangerous. She said, oh! so innocently:

"Would you like to dance? If so, I will play." And she reached for her lute which was by her side.

"Yes, that will be delightful, Master Brandon, will you dance with me?" asked the princess, with a saucy little laugh, her invitation meaning so much more to three of us than to Brandon. Jane and I joined in the laugh, and when Mary clapped her hands that set Brandon off, too, for he thought it the quaintest, prettiest little gesture in the world, and was all unconscious that our laugh was at his expense.

Brandon did not answer Mary's invitation—the fit of laughter had probably put it out of his mind—so she, evidently anxious to win or lose her wager at once, again asked him if he danced.

"Oh, pardon me. Of course. Thank you." And he was on his feet beside her chair in an instant ready for the dance. This time the girl's laugh, though equally merry, had another tone, for she knew she had lost.

Out they stepped upon the polished floor, he holding her hand in his, awaiting the pause in the music to take the step. I shall never forget the sight of those two standing there together—Mary, dark-eyed and glowing; Brandon, almost rosy, with eyes that held the color of a July cornpoppy, and a wealth of flowing curls crowning his six feet of perfect manhood, strong and vigorous as a young Hon.

Mary, full of beauty-curves and graces, a veritable Venus in her teens, and Brandon, an Apollo with a touch of Hercules, were a complement each to the other that would surely make a perfect one.

When the music started, off they went, heel and toe, bow and curtsey, a step forward and a step back, in perfect time and rhythm—a poem of human motion. Could Brandon dance? The princess had her answer in the first ten steps.

Nothing could be more graceful than Brandon's dancing, unless it were Mary's. Her slightest movement was grace itself. When she would throw herself backward in thrusting out her toe, and then swing forward with her head a little to one side, her uplifted arm undulating like the white neck of a swan—for her sleeve, which was slit to the shoulder, fell back and left it bare—she was a sight worth a long journey to see. And when she looked up to Brandon with a laugh in her brown eyes, and a curving smile just parting her full, red lips, that a man would give his very luck to—but I had better stop.

"Was there ever a goodlier couple?" I asked Jane, by whose side I sat.

Never," she responded as she played, and, strange to say, I was jealous because she agreed with me. I was jealous because I feared it was Brandon's beauty to which she referred. That I thought would naturally appeal to her. Had he been less handsome I should perhaps have thought nothing of it but I knew what my feelings were toward Mary and I judged or rather misjudged, Jane by myself. I supposed she would think of Brandon as I could not help thinking of Mary. Was anything in Heaven or earth ever so beautiful as that royal creature, dancing there, daintily holding up her skirts with thumb and first finger just far enough to show a red stocking little foot and ankle, and make one wish he had been born a sheep rather than sentient man who had to live without Mary Tudor? Yet strange as it may seem, I was really and wholly in love with Jane in fact I loved no one but Jane and my feeling of intense admiration for Mary was but a part of man's complex constancy.

A woman—God bless her—if she really loves a man, has no thought of any other; and at a time is all-sufficient, but a man may love one woman with the warmth of a simoon, and at the same time feel like a good healthy south wind toward a dozen others.

Mary Tudor (Marion Davies) has a moment of pique when Lady Jane sees her reading Brandon's letter.

That is the difference between a man and a woman. There is a difference between the good and the bad. One average woman has enough goodness in her to supply an army of men.

Mary and Brandon went on dancing long after Jane was tired of playing. It was pain to see that the girl was thoroughly enjoying it. They kept up a running fire of small talk, and laughed, and smiled, and bowed, and curtsied, all in perfect time and grace.

It is more difficult than you may think, if you have never tried, to keep up a conversation and dance La Gallard, at the same time—one is apt to balk the other—but Brandon's dancing was as easy to him as walking, and, although so small a matter, I could see it raised him vastly in the estimation of both girls.

"Do you play, friend?" I heard Mark ask in the midst of the dancing.

"Oh! yes," replied Brandon, much to my delight, as the princess threw a mischievous, knowing glance over her shoulder to see if I had heard. She at once saw I had, and this, of course, settled the wager.

"Oh! do you?" cried Mary. "That will more than compensate for the loss of my crowns. Let's—I—I—I was at once. I have been wishing to earn but no one here seems to know it. In France, they say, it is the only game. I suppose it is—where you learned it? Perhaps you know their new dances too? I have heard they are delightful."

"Yes, I know them" replied Brandon.

"Why, you are a perfect treasure teach me at once. How now Master of the Dance? Here is your friend outdoing you in your own line."

"I am glad to hear it." I returned.

"If Lady Jane will kindly play some more, I will teach you one of the newer dances," said Brandon.

"I will now one plump I'll be knee over the other and strike up." The Sir Knee. After a bit Brandon got the pairing to Brandon suggested to stepped deliberately in front of Mary and gave her right hand while left, and then was at with his right arm. The girl was startled at first and drew away. This netted Brandon a little, and he showed it plainly.

"I thought you wished me to teach you the new—now?" he said.

"I do, but—but I did not know it was danced that way" she replied with a fluttering little laugh, looking up into his face with a half shy, half apologetic manner, and then dropping her lashes before his gaze.

"Oh, well!" said Brandon, with a Frenchman's shrug of the shoulders, and then moved off as if about to leave the floor.

"But is that really the way you—they dance it? With your—their arm around my—a lady's waist?"

"I should not have dared venture upon such a familiarity otherwise," answered Brandon with a glimmer of a smile playing around his lips and hiding in his eyes.

Mary saw this shadowy smile, and said: "Oh, I fear your modesty will cause you hurt; I am beginning to believe you would dare do anything you wish. I more than half suspect you are a very bold man, notwithstanding your smooth, modest manner."

"You do me foul wrong, I assure you. I am the soul of modesty and grieve that you should think me bold" said Brandon with a broadening smile.

Mary interrupted him: "Now, I do believe you are laughing at me—at my prudery. I suppose you think it."

Mary would rather have been called a fool than a prude and I think she was right. Prudery is no more a sign of virtue than a wig—rather it usually puts on to hide a bald place.

The princess stood irresolute for a moment in evident hesitation and annoyance.

"Yes, are great a because I thought bold. And yet you start there a dance for me to see. I think so much than ever you know—oh you make me angry. Take—take—take—

Man and Maid

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

Sir Nicholas Thormonde, a wealthy Englishman, wounded and blinded in one eye in action, starts writing his diary in Paris while the war is still on. He is sick of life. The war has robbed it of all that a young man can find of joy. He tries to amuse himself in the company of several women friends, who, he feels, seek his company for his money and not for the love he craves. He starts to write a book and hires a typist, Miss Sharp. He falls in love with her and has a hard time getting rid of Suzette.

Now Go On With the Story

ST. MALO:

How quaint these places are. I am at this deserted corner by the sea—where the hotel is comfortable, and hardly touched by the war—I am not happy—the air is doing me good, that is all—I have brought books—I am not trying to write—I just read and endeavor to sleep—and the hours pass.

I tell myself continually that I am no more interested in Alathea—that I am going to get well, and go back to England—but I have emerged, and am a man with a free will once more—and I am a great deal better—.

After all, how absurd to be thinking of a woman from morning to night!

When I get my new leg, and everything is all healed up in a year or two, shall I be able to ride again?—Of course I shall, no doubt, and even play a little tennis?—I can shoot anyway—if we will be allowed to preserve partridges and pheasants when the war is over in England.

Yes, of course life is a gorgeous thing—I like the fierce wind to blow in my face—and yesterday, much to Burton's displeasure, I went out sailing—.

How I could be such a fool, he inferred—as to chance a wrench putting me back some months again—But one has to chance things occasionally. I never enjoyed a sail more because of this very knowledge.

A week has passed since we came to this end of the earth, and again, I have grown restless; perhaps it is because Burton came in just now with a letter in his hand. I recognized immediately Alathea's writing.

"I made so bold as to leave the young lady our address before we left, Sir Nicholas, in case she wanted to communicate with us, and she writes now to say, would I be good enough to ask you if you took with you Chapter Seven, because she cannot find it anywhere."

Then he went on with evident constraint to tell me that the rest of the letter said that while she was working on Friday a "Madamoiselle in Blonde" called and insisted upon passing Pierre, who answered the door, and coming in to her ("It was Mam'selle, of course, Sir Nicholas!" Burton snapped.) And that she had demanded my address, but Miss Sharp had not felt she was justified in giving it to her, but had said letters would be forwarded.

"I hope to goodness that the baggage made no scene with the young lady, Sir Nicholas," Burton growled—"Of course she don't say in the letter—but it's more than likely—I would not have her insulted for the world."

"Nor I either," I retorted angrily—"Suzette ought to know better now that I have given her everything she wanted—will you let her understand please that this must not occur again—"

"I'll see that the lawyer does it, Sir—that is the only way to deal with them persons—though Mamselle was the best of her sort. Seems to me, Sir Nicholas, they are more bother than they are worth. I said it always, even when I was younger—they leave their trail of trouble wherever they go."

How I agreed with him!

He here was a fresh barrier arisen between Alathea and myself. A fresh barrier which I cannot explain away. The only comfort I get out of the whole thing is that imperative necessity must have been driving my little darling, or she would not put up with any of these things for a moment, and would have given her demission at the same time as she wrote.

If money is so necessary to her, perhaps after all I could get her consent to marry me. The very thought made my pulses bound again, and all my calm flew to the winds. All the sage reasoning which was beginning to have an effect upon me evaporated! I knew that once more I was at utterly under the spell of her attraction as the moment when my passionate lips touched her soft reluctant ones. Ah, that thought! that memory! One I have never let myself think of now all resistance broken on every side.

I spent the rest of the day dreaming about the joy of that kiss, until by night time I was as mad as a hatter, and more full of cruel unrest than ever.

I hate this place. I hate the sea. It is all of no use, I shall go back to Paris.

The first thing I learned when I reached the apartment was that the Duchess had returned and wished to see me. This was good news—and without even telephoning to Maurice, I got into my one-horse Victoria and repaired to the Hotel de Courville.

The Duchesse was sitting in her boudoir upstairs when I got in. She had a quaint expression upon her face. I was not certain that her greeting was as cordial as usual—has gossip reached her ears also?

I sat down near her and she took my crutch from me tenderly, her instinct for "blesser" never failing her.

I thought I would begin at once before she could say anything which might make questioning her impossible.

"I have been longing to see you, Duchesse, to ask you if you could help me to find out who my secretary, Miss Sharp, is?—because I saw her here in the passage one day, and I thought you might possibly be able to identify her."

"Tiens?"

"Her Christian name is Alathea," I heard her little sister call her once when I saw them and they did not see me, in the Bois. She is a lady, and I feel Sharp is not her name at all."

The Duchesse put on her eyeglasses.

"She has not shown a sign that she wishes you to know her history?"

"No——"

"Then, my son, do you think it is very good taste to endeavor to discover it?"

"Perhaps not—" I was nettled. I hated that the Duchesse should be displeased with me, then I went on—"I feel that she is very poor and I know that her little brother died just lately, and I would give anything in the world to help them in some way."

"Sometimes one helps more by showing discretion."

"You won't assist me then, Duchesse? I feel that you know Miss Sharp."

"Nicholas, if I did not love you really, I should be angry. Am I the character to betray friends, presuming that I have friends, for a young man's curiosity?"

"Camouflage!"

I felt angry now.

"You assume that your secretary is a demoiselle du monde," she went on, "if you have reached that far, you should know that there is some honor, some tenue left in the old families, and so you should treat her with consideration and respect her incognito. All this is not like you, my son!"

The Duchesse had dropped the "thee and thou"—it hurt me.

"I want to treat her with every respect—" I reiterated.

"Then believe me it is unnecessary for you to know her name—I am not altogether pleased with you, Nicholas."

"Dear Duchesse! that grieved me—I wish I could explain—I have only wanted to be kind—and I don't even know her address and could not send flowers when her brother died."

"They did not want flowers, perhaps—Take my advice—of the best I can give—Pay your secretary her wages—as high ones as she will accept—and then treat her as if she were fifty years old—and wear glasses!"

"She does wear glasses—abominable yellow horn rimmed spectacles!" I announced excitedly.—"Have you never seen them?"

The Duchesse's eyes flashed—

"I have not said I ever met Miss Sharp, Nicholas—"

I knew the affair was now hopeless and that I would only risk the real displeasure of my dear old friend if I continued in this way. So I changed the subject with as much instinct too that I would not receive sympathy even if I owned that my intentions were strictly honorable.

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By W. F. Kirk

OUR teacher asked us to ask our paironts what is dreems, she was telling us a line which Mister Shakespeer rote, it is ars such stuff as dreems are made of.

So I asked Pa to tell me what made dreems & what dreems are, & Pa sed Well, that is a hard questun to answer. The wisest men of all ages, Bobbie, sed Pa, has gone much thought to dreems & what maks dreems, & nobody ever got far in doping out dreems, sed Pa.

O no, sed Pa. I dreemed the other nite that I was a boy singing in a Quoir, sed Pa, & I never sang in a Quoir, wud you believe that?

It is very easy to believe that you never sang in a Quoir, sed Ma. It wud be hard to believe that a quoir wud ask you to sing, sed Ma.

So you see, sed Pa, that dreems are not always memorys, Pa sed. I think myself that dreems are nothing but the loose ends of our thoughts, sed Pa, the tangeld threds of our daytime mental efforts, sed Pa. Finch day each one of us weeves a mentil rug, so to meek, sed Pa. & at nite the raveld threds & fringes maike dreems, sed Pa.

What a wonderful mind you have, dear, sed Ma.

I know it, sed Pa. I was always brite, ewen in my kid days, Pa sed.

I will tell our teecher what you sed dreems is, I sed to Pa. I bet she will adde more you. I sed.

No dont she will sed Pa. But she wont be the only one wich has been astounded at my mentil grasp, sed Pa.

Speeking of dreems, sed Ma, I bet you never dreemed wen you were a little boy how grate a intelleck you wud have wen you growed up, sed Ma.

I did not, sed Pa.

& I will bet yure father nevver dreemed what a great son he had, sed Ma.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Said one of Henry Ford's most intimate friends to me the other day:

"Henry's more stubborn than a mule. Once he gets an idea into his head no power on earth can drive it out, no matter how fantastic an idea it may be. Those of us who are his closest friends are the ones who most regret some of the ill advised stunts Henry has been misled into doing."

Then, he added: "But I want you to understand that Henry is one of the most lovable of men.

"He has views of his own about how he should use his money. He has never gone in for giving away money, as so many men not one-tenth as wealthy as he has done. His conception is that the money he makes can be most good if it is employed to build more plants and thus give work at good wages to larger and larger numbers of men. He believes that the greatest thing any man can do for another is to afford opportunity for remunerative employment. He is very strong on this point.

"This explains why he is constantly expanding his operations on a scale that now staggers the whole earth. His ambition is to go on and on branching out. There is no limit to what he believes he can accomplish—with the aid, I should add, of his son, Edsel, who, his father feels, is a genius."

Ford's conception of what constitutes the most useful, the most successful life's work reminds me of a thought-stirring session I had with one of our foremost financiers, a man who rose from the ranks and who, although he worked tremendously hard, never lost touch with the finer things of life, and who some time ago threw off most of his business burdens in order to have time to do worth while things for his fellow-mortals.

Here is his definition of what is most worth while:

"A man can leave no better monument than an organization, an establishment conducted on honorable lines and giving employment to hundreds or thousands of his fellow-men at wages which enable them to live happily. To create such a business, to build it up, stone upon stone, to invest it with all the elements of stability, so that it will endure—that is worth doing. To supply men with reasonably profitable employment, to give them the means of rearing families in decency and comfort—that is something one can look back upon without regret.

"Or, take railroad building. To supply a country in need of transportation with a good road and then have the pleasure of watching the people prosper as a result of your efforts—that is one of the grandest achievements I know. You can thus add to the sum total of human happiness. You cause two blades of grass to grow where only one grew before. You aid the development of the country along legitimate lines. You build. You raise a monument more enviable than one of marble—useless, unproductive.

"Any work well done, anything worthy into which you throw yourself, gives satisfaction of the right kind. In olden days a man would make a goblet of exquisite beauty and he would love it. Today there can be just as much romance in planning and erecting, say, an electric power station which sends out its wonderful miracle-working current to turn the world's wheels. The smooth symmetry of its machinery, its usefulness—all these can appeal to man's soul. The man who builds such a plant has created something and there is no joy equalling that of creation."

"What part does money making play in a multimillionaire's life?" I asked.

"At first it is important—it is necessary—you naturally want a home for your family and enough money to insure that you will not be turned out of it. After that you need money to play the game, so to speak. You want, of course, to get into the blue chip class.

"Then, when you have made all you can possibly need for the ordinary demands of life, money-making becomes another matter of bookkeeping. You cannot eat it. You cannot drink it. You cannot wear it. You cannot carry it about with you.

"But money is only an incidental. It is your work that counts. Your plans absorb your attention. Achievement, not money, yields satisfaction.

(Copyright, 1922, by B. C. Forbes.)

CREDITS G. O. P. WITH LIBERTY BOND RISE

The rise in value of Liberty bonds is credited to the Republican party's administration by United States Senator James M. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York in an address before the Boston University Republican Club at Ford Hall. In urging the election of Republican members to the House and Senate, Senator Wadsworth said that if Democrats are sent to Congress, all real progress will be halted. "There will be no union of legislative and executive," he said. "Eighteen months of Republican administration has put soundness into the hearts of the people, and for this Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is largely responsible."

On account of Columbus Day, a holiday in both Massachusetts and New York, both New York and Boston stock markets closed.

Federal Deficit Likely to Force Adoption of Sales Tax to Raise Revenue

MEASURE SEEN AS THE ONLY WAY OUT

Federal taxation is a subject that will be prominent in the discussions of Congress at the next session when the question of meeting the treasury deficit comes up.

For the present fiscal year, ending next June, the Federal expenditures will be about $4,000,000,000 all told, and not much more than $2,000,000,000 will be received by the treasury from taxes and tariff. The Post Office will add several hundred millions more and there may be a substantial amount from liquidation of war supplies.

There will be a deficit of something like $500,000,000 or more.

As the tariff and the sale of supplies cannot be depended on to wipe out this deficit, some kind of tax program will have to be agreed upon to raise the necessary funds, because the treasury will certainly not want to add further to the public debt by selling bonds to clear up the deficit.

Many today are pointing to the sales tax as the only way out.

WHAT IS A SURPLUS?

As internal taxes must be relied upon to raise the money, it becomes a question of deciding on what kind of tax will turn the trick.

There has been some talk lately of a new tax to be levied on corporate surpluses. Unquestionably this would be a fruitful field if somebody could determine precisely what is a surplus.

The Supreme Court has ruled that stock dividends are not taxable. Anything carried on the books of a corporation as surplus can therefore be capitalized by a stock dividend and immediately the taxable surplus disappears.

For example, if a corporation has only $100,000,000 in stock but had assets worth $200,000,000, the difference of $100,000,000 between assets and stock would be carried under liabilities as a surplus. Because of this surplus might represent cash, but in most cases it would represent almost exclusively other assets like real estate, machinery, office equipment and securities, and in some instances good will.

ELIMINATES SURPLUS.

By simply declaring a stock dividend of $100,000,000, or 100 per cent., the corporation could put the surplus out of existence. The stock dividend would transfer it to the item of capital stock, where it could not be taxable as surplus, and the 100 per cent. stock dividend declared to accomplish this purpose would not be taxable, either.

The laboring man may escape paying income taxes altogether, due to exemptions of low wages, but he will pay under the present system, possibly as much as a quarter or a third of his entire earnings indirectly to the government. He pays his tax in the shape of higher prices, which cover the taxes of the merchants and the manufacturers who sell him the goods.

SALES TAX PLAN.

The sales tax, it is argued, will not prevent the merchant and manufacturer from passing the tax along. But it will fix a specific amount to be passed on to the consumer.

A definite amount is fixed in the sales tax and this is added to the price of the article. If 2 per cent. sales tax would add 4 cents to the price of every dollar in merchandise. No merchant could add 5 cents without losing his business to his competitors who would add only the 4 cents.

The supporters of the sales tax are equally simple and economically sound. Extravagance is not encouraged, as under the present system, because no matter how large the profits from a business may be, there would be nothing but the regular tax.

ELIMINATE GUESSWORK.

Simplicity in computation is another advantage. At the end of every week or month a merchant would simply need to look at his total sales and calculate exactly what his tax amounted to. Guesswork would be unnecessary.

The sales tax was advocated as a means of raising money for the soldier bonus. Now that the bonus is out of the way people who opposed the sales tax because they opposed the bonus can be lined up for the tax.

The sales tax has found a permanent place in the revenue-raising program of many nations. In the opinion of authorities, it is bound to become a part of our government tax plans, and some even go so far as definitely to predict its adoption before the end of the next session of Congress, which begins in December.

The amount that can be raised by the tax depends on whether it is one, two, three or four per cent. It is usually estimated that the turnover in this country amounts to $40,000,000,000 a year. A one per cent. tax would raise about $400,000,000; two per cent. would raise $800,000,000; three per cent. $1,200,000,000, and four per cent. $1,600,000,000.

Replies to Investors

Queries of interest to investors will be answered in this column or by mail. Address questions, with stamped and self-addressed envelope, to Frank H. Melson, Financial Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Money in Bank.

To A. B. C., Derry, N. H.—If you are likely to need your several thousand dollars, now in the bank, for purpose of buying a business at almost any time, it seems to me the best thing for you to do is to keep it there, where it is readily accessible. If you put it in bonds, you are possibly going to need it at a time when you might have to sell at a loss. No one can forecast exactly what a stock or bond will be worth at a certain time, no matter how safe the investment may be.

Stutz Motor.

To R. M. M., Wellesley.—Your inquiry as to progress in Stutz comes to hand just as announcement is made that a special meeting of Stutz Motor stockholders will be held November 1 to authorize $1,500,000 15-year 7½ per cent. convertible sinking fund gold debenture bonds, of which it is intended to issue $1,000,000 at present and to authorize increase in authorized number of shares by 63,000 shares, of which 53,000 are intended to be set aside to provide for possible conversion of the bonds and remaining 30,000 are to be offered to stockholders at $20 a share, in the proportion of three shares of new stock to each holder of 20 shares of old stock. Convertible bonds will also be offered pro rata to stockholders.

Basis of conversion will be thirty-three shares of stock for each $1,000 bond. Proceeds of financing are to be used for developing and improving company's business. Both $1,000,000 debenture bonds and 30,000 shares of stock have been underwritten. Transfer books will close October 14.

Bangor & Aroostook.

To T. M. C., East Boston.—Your speculative capital is too small to engage in the frenzied scramble for Standard Oil issues. You would probably be wiped out in the melee some fine day.

Bangor & Aroostook preferred was listed on the Boston Stock Exchange Tuesday, but no shares changed hands. This is the 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock offered to the public at 95 about three weeks ago; previously the stock has been held by private interests. The 4½ per cent. bonds of June 30 last, preferred dividend requirements were covered approximately five and one-half times, and since creation of the stock five years ago dividend requirements on this issue have been earned on the average about two and one-half times.

CURLEY GETS AID IN HUB RATES FIGHT

Congressman William S. Greene of Fall River, chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, in a letter to Mayor Curley promises to aid the latter in his effort to bring about the abolition of the unfair differential rates which have for years been strangling the port of Boston.

He is the first of the Massachusetts delegation at Washington to reply to the Mayor's telegram urging that they awake to the fact that the present rate differentials are crippling the port of Boston, but the rest of New England.

The Congressman also enclosed a copy of a letter that he sent to Chairman Charles C. McChord, of the Interstate Commerce Commission urging him with all "vigor and energy, that the Interstate Commerce Commission deal fairly towards the petition of the Maritime Association of the City of Boston to abolish the differential freight rates whereby preference is given to the ports of Baltimore and Philadelphia over all other ports of the North Atlantic Coast."

AROOSTOOK POTATO FIGURES SHRINK

Bangor, Oct. 12. — Aroostook county's potato crop is way below even conservative estimates of September 1, when it was believed there would be 22,660,000 barrels. It now seems certain the total will be under 18,000,000 barrels. The yield elsewhere has been so strong, however, that prices in Maine average about $1 a barrel. At no time has the grower received more than $1.50 a barrel.

Dividends Declared.

Lowe's Boston Theatre's Co. declared quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. on common, payable November 15, stock of record November 7.

Thomas G. Plant Co. declared quarterly dividend of $1.75 on first preferred, payable October 31, stock of record October 21.

Hanna Bros. declared quarterly dividend of $2.50 on Class A common, and quarterly dividend of 50 cents on Class B common, payable November 15, stock of record November 1.

400 P. C. STOCK DIVIDEND FOR N. J. STANDARD

Standard Oil of New Jersey stockholders have been called for a special meeting on November 8 to authorize an increase of $515,000,000 in the capital stock to provide for the distribution of a 400 per cent. stock dividend, planned by directors, according to announcement made following the directors' meeting.

The proposed stock distribution will increase the outstanding common stock to $500,000,000. The balance of the shares to be authorized, about 4,000,000 shares, will be held in the Treasury to met such needs of the company as may arise in the future.

A. C. Bedford, chairman of the board, in announcing the plan to shareholders, stipulates:

"The directors feel that the shareholders should be advised that in view of the requirements of the company for capital investment, the directors have no purpose to increase the aggregate amount of dividend disbursements at the present time.

"This means that common shareholders now receiving $5 on each common share held will receive $1 on each share after the proposed stock distribution is made, according to those connected with the company, so that the annual return to stockholders will not be changed at this time.

Mr. Bedford points out that with the exception of $1,056,625 common stock issued to trustees for the employes under his stock acquisition plan, there has been no material increase in the common since 1899. During 1919 and 1920 there was created to meet capital requirements a total of $200,000,000 preferred stock.

Wall St. Gossip

GIMBEL BROS. looks like a good buy around present prices.

RAILWAY STEEL SPRING ought to advance sharply in a continued bull market.

TEXAS CO. is rumored to have a lot of cash in the treasuries of its foreign subsidiaries; the Mexican property is said to have earned $8,000,000 last year, with current Mexican production the best in eight months.

ANNUAL MEETING of Turman Oil, Middle States Oil subsidiary, scheduled for October 10, has been adjourned until 11 a. m., October 19.

LACKAWANNA Steel is arranging for the delivery to stockholders of their pro rata share of Bethlehem stock and each upon surrender of Lackawanna Steel stock held by such shareholders.

STEWART-WARNER net profits, before federal taxes, for third quarter are estimated at $1,500,000.

WOOLWORTH preferred stockholders in addition to $125 a share, will receive 60 cents a share in accrued dividend when the stock is redeemed next February.

NEW YORK CENTRAL'S September net is approximately $4,000,000, or within $1,000,000 of September of 1921. August net, reflecting worst period of combined coal and rail shop strike effects, was $2,424,014.

AMERICAN RADIATOR directors expect at regular meeting of the board in January business conditions will continue to warrant maintenance of present quarterly dividend of $1 a share on increased issues of common stock.

UNITED STATES REALTY for five months ended September 30, reports net income of $1,147,178, equal to $7.90 a share on $16,162,-800 stock, against $809,170, or $5 on same period 1921. Net for September was $292,643, against $197,-775 a year ago.

U. S. INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL since 1915 has carried to surplus in excess of $40 per share, and has an adjusted profit and loss surplus of over that amount.

U. S. FOREIGN POLICY SOUND, SAYS MALONE

(Special Cable to Universal Service.)

London, Oct. 12.—Dudley Field Malone, prominent New York and Paris attorney, discussed Anglo-American relations with Premier Lloyd George in a private conference at Downing street.

Malone, who is sailing for New York on the George Washington—the last wet trip of this United States liner—refused to disclose the exact details of his conversation with the Premier, but it is understood that the chief topic of the talk was the present attitude of America toward Europe.

CRISIS OVER.

"The Premier looks extremely fit," said Malone. "I was happy to meet him. He evinced great interest in and appreciation of the American attitude in the Near East crisis, which is now, happily, practically over."

Discussing the political situation in America, Malone said:

"Although I have always been a Democrat, I hope President Harding will receive the support of the American people by the return of a friendly Congress.

EVENTS SHOW WISDOM.

"Every day events in Europe prove the wisdom and soundness of the foreign policy of President Harding and Secretary Hughes."

Malone expressed the opinion that the United States, ruling forbidding ships to carry liquors is illegal as against foreign vessels, saying:

"I do not think it can be enforced against ships under foreign flags as long as they do not violate the three-mile limit law."

Boston Notes

NEW HAVEN has applied to Public Service Commission for permission to increase commutation rates 20 per cent. in New York State, between New York and Port Chester.

NEVADA CONSOLIDATED'S reconstructed plant is treating 1,000 tons of crude ore a day, with another 1,000-ton unit about to start. Plant will have capacity of about 15,000 tons a day.

U. S. STEEL is among issues suggested for stock distribution. But it would be against all past policies of directors to take such action.

AMERICAN WOOLEN has an earned surplus represented by $17,000,000 carried to profit and loss since 1917, equivalent to $40 per share, and is ripe for special disbursement at any time management elects.

ENDICOTT JOHNSON has a profit and loss surplus equivalent to $40 per share. A special disbursement is overdue.

WHILE RAILS' August net earnings were only 2.65 per cent. of net valuation, it is recognized that best period of year for roads is now at hand, and earnings should increase enormously.

UTAH COPPER'S operating policy is not to be changed for present. Operations are at about half capacity, with monthly production of from 9,500,000 to 10,000,000 pounds of copper.

SENECA COPPER'S railroad work is being pushed rapidly and it is likely the rails may be down before snow flies.

NEXT MONDAY 18,000 additional shares, par $10, common capital stock of John T. Connor Company, will be placed on Boston Stock Exchange list.

ELECTED PRESIDENT OF TECHNOLOGY

DR. SAMUEL WESLEY STRATTON

Bachelor of sixty-one is greatly interested in aeronautics and military life. He has had a remarkable record in building up the United States Bureau of Standards at Washington. This bureau has been of great aid to the business men of the country.

DR. STRATTON NEW HEAD OF TECHNOLOGY

Dr. Samuel Wesley Stratton, director of the United States Bureau of Standards at Washington, has been elected president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by the members of the corporation and will take office January 1, 1923.

Since the death of Dr. Richard C. Maclaurin in January, 1920, Tech has been practically without a leader. Dr. Ernest Fox Nichols, who was chosen new head in March, 1921, and was inaugurated the following June, was forced to resign by ill health in November, 1921, without actually being in office.

SCIENTIFIC GENIUS.

Only after a diligent search for nearly a year has the Tech corporation chosen a leader of rare scientific abilities. Dr. Stratton, as founder of the Bureau of Standards in 1901 and its only director, was the leading genius of an institution which has become an authority on the precision of standards and scientific research respected not only throughout the United States, but the world over.

It was his great inspiring work which built up the optical glass industry in this country, thus making us independent of Germany, and was of vital help during the war.

Dr. Stratton was born in Litchfield, Ill., in July, 1861. He received his bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering at the University of Illinois in 1884. He remained at the university until 1892, becoming professor of electrical engineering and physics. He then went to the University of Chicago, where he was professor of physics until he was called to Washington in 1901 to establish the new Bureau of Standards.

The new Tech president has been especially recognized by his own university and honored with a degree of Doctor of Science by the Western University of Pennsylvania, the University of Cambridge, England, and Yale.

BELIEVER IN SPORTS.

He is interested in aeronautical work and has conducted experiments in aeronautic research.

Dr. Stratton is a firm believer in college sports and is a staunch friend of student government.

He is a member of many scientific societies, including the National Academy of Sciences, the National Research Council, American Association for the Advancement of Sciences, American Institute of Electrical Engineers and American Society of Electrical Engineers. He is also a member of the Cosmos, Chevy Chase and Army and Navy Clubs, and is honorary member of Sigma Xi and Tau Beta Pi. He is a bachelor.

LISTED STOCKS WITHOUT PAR INCREASE

In slightly more than ten years seventy-five corporations have listed an aggregate of well over 45,000,000 shares of stock without par value on the New York Stock Exchange. Such rapid growth in popularity has indicated the need which existed for a security properly representing a speculative interest in part of the earnings and property of a company aside from capital actually invested, dollar for dollar.

After twenty years of pressure by the Bar Association, New York State on April 15, 1912, passed a law permitting corporations to issue stock without par value. Other States followed in quick succession; Maryland in 1916, California, Delaware and Maine in 1917 and so on, until today twenty-one States make provisions for issuance of no-par stock.

Usually statutes provide that stocks may be issued by securing a provision in the charter of a corporation, or by an amendment to the existing charter. Issuing privilege is limited to business corporations such as mining, manufacturing and other enterprises. Laws provide that shares shall be equal in all respects, and in New York, shareholders must be informed of the proportional share of the company which they hold. Most States make the optional with the company.

Of the companies which have listed no-par stock on the New York Stock Exchange, about 55 per cent. have incorporated in New York, about 32 per cent in Delaware, and most of the others in New Jersey, Maryland and Ohio. Decision as to the proper state in which to organize usually depends upon taxing provisions of the State laws.

Of no-par stocks listed on the Stock Exchange, the automobile industry accounts for 33.4 per cent., oils 22.3 per cent., coppers 8.3 per cent., steels 2.8 per cent., rubber 2.2 per cent., automobile parts 2 per cent. and miscellaneous businesses the remaining 30.4 per cent. Among the larger companies reported are United Chemical, Cerro de Pasco, Coca-Cola, Cuba Cane Sugar, General Motors, Goodrich, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward, Pacific Oil, Sinclair, Cosden, Fisher Body.

Woburn Loan

Woburn will receive bids until 12 noon, October 13, for purchase at discount of temporary loan of $50,000, due February 14, 1923.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR EXTRA DIVIDEND

A short time ago it was officially intimated that Middle States Oil might authorize the declaration of an extra dividend.

MILK DEALERS HEAR ADDRESS BY H. P. HOOD

H. P. Hood, 2nd, treasurer of H. P. Hood & Sons, told the International Milk Dealers' Association at their annual convention in Minneapolis, that "progress in the dairy industry should be measured by the decrease in cost of its products and the increase in their quality."

"It does not make so much difference except to the debtor and creditor whether wages go up and selling prices remain where they are or whether wages remain the same and selling prices drop. They both amount to the same thing. It is the ratio between selling prices and wages that count, and to get prosperous along this line and advance our material standard of living over a period of time, wages must go up in relation to selling prices. Putting it in another way, selling prices must go down in relation to wages.

"The fact that we pay a route salesman more wages than ten years ago and not accompanied by a similar advance in selling price, is a sign of progress. The only way we can afford to increase wages in relation to selling costs, however, is by getting greater accomplishments from each individual connected with the business."

U. S. TARGET OF EUROPE, HE SAYS

Washington, Oct. 12. — European nations are consumed with jealousy and hatred of each other, but the United States is their special target, Senator Caraway declared yesterday on return from Europe. "There is one grand anvil chorus against the United States," he said. "They quit knocking each other and unite on us whenever the United States is mentioned."

NEW HAVEN CUTS HOLIDAY SCHEDULE

The New Haven Railroad omitted many of its regular trains today. The changes in service are posted in all stations, announcing the special stops to be made by both ingoing and outgoing trains.

CROP PRODUCERS GET LESS MONEY

Washington, Oct. 12.—Producers of the principal crops in the United States were paid an advance price of 2 per cent. less for their products in September than in the previous month. According to figures compiled today by the Department of Agriculture, the farm price of meat animals decreased 2.4 per cent. from August 15 to September 15, the department statement shows.

U. S. SHIP SAILS WITH FOOD FOR NEAR EAST

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—The U. S. Shipping Board steamship Saugerties from this port and was to sail today with a cargo of $210,000 worth of foodstuffs which will be distributed from Constantinople by the Near East Relief among Greek and Armenian refugees. The Saugus is the first vessel to leave this country with supplies for those rendered destitute by the Smyrna disaster. The cargo consists mainly of 6,000 barrels of flour.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

REAL ESTATE HAPPENINGS

An important auction sale of Washington street land will be held under the direction of John C. Kiley & Company, 18 Tremont street, Saturday, when the corner lot, situated at Washington, Townsend and Brinton streets, Roxbury, will be offered at unlimited auction.

The plot contains 27,400 square feet of land, with a frontage on Washington street of 203 feet. Its depth of ninety feet makes it an especially desirable plot for improvement with stores, garage or other mercantile buildings. The assessed valuation of the property is $19,200, it is said. It is announced, it will be sold for whatever it brings under the hammer.

The sale will start promptly at three o'clock.

BUYS IN SUBURBS

Edward F. Cassell has purchased from Ishbel A. Hardwick the property at No. 16 Third street, Medford, consisting of a two-family house and 7200 square feet of land, all assessed for $5600.

Mr. Cassell also has purchased from Henry A. Wyman, et al, trustees of the Frank E. Chace estate, the single frame house and 3200 square feet of land at No. 12 Washington place, Roxbury. The total assessed value is $2300.

Another purchase announced by Edward F. Cassell is that of a lot of land on Sagamore avenue, containing 6000 square feet and assessed for $1000, from Henry A. Wyman, et al, trustees of the Frank E. Chace estate.

TREMONT STREET SALE

12 Sohier Walch and others, trustees under the will of Charles E. Cutting, have sold to, J. Murray Howe for investment the brick properties at 285-291 Tremont street, and 63-65 Warrenton street, which are assessed in two parcels. The Tremont-street piece is valued by the assessors at $46,000, of which $32,700 is on the lot containing 1,284 feet; the Warrenton street place has a tax value of $19,600, of which $14,000 is on 3,078 feet of land, making a total assessed value of $45,600.

IN CITY PROPER

Israel Miller conveys to Jennie Peters the brick building and 4,924 feet of land at 37 Thorndike street, between Reed and Washington streets, valued by the assessors at $12,600, of which $6,400 is on the land.

WEST ROXBURY SALE

Annie McGlennon transfers to Arne I. Drew and another a frame house and about 11,800 feet of land in Stratford street, West Roxbury, between Pelton street and Anawan avenue. The tax value is about $13,000, of which $3,200 is on the land.

Here's Another Cynic

He Need Not Worry About "Common" Mothers

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Dear Sir:

Apropos of Professor Hopkins' claim, "Too many men go to college."

Professor Aikens of the College of Women, Western Reserve University, gets down to real facts and figures. He says:

The army tests showed that not more than 15 per cent. of the people could profit by a college education even if equipped with the necessary preliminary training.

Tests also showed that 70 per cent. haven't brains enough to get through an ordinary high school.

Again—as long as intelligent people have fewer children than the unintelligent, more and more will the community grow stupid in spite of all the educational institutions of the world.

On the whole, the present trend in the United States is to perpetuate the brainless. Many don't think because they don't have to.

In a land of luxury, intelligence and its use is a luxury. Besides, it is frequently unpleasant to THINK—it gets you in bad with the boss, with the school, the church, your parents and your gang.

Very truly yours,
CHARLES M. WHITE.

No. 2541 Prospect avenue, Cleveland.

What Mr. White says about army tests showing low intelligence and lack of education is too true.

But Mr. White need not worry about the common people producing nearly all the children. When it comes to producing children, common people do fairly well. Lincoln, born in a one-room hut with a dirt floor and no windows, no books, and quite needless to say no bathtub, was from very common people. Still he was welcome.

The rate of birth is low on Beacon street, Boston, or Euclid avenue, Cleveland, compared with neighborhoods where men and women work hard for a living. But if you think that a bad thing for the coming generation, you don't know much about human beings or what influences children.

Who is the Norman that everybody knows? It is William the Conqueror, that took French intelligence and blood to England and made himself ruler there.

Did he come from the aristocracy? Not exactly. His mother, daughter of a humble tanner, was washing clothes in a brook when the Duke of Normandy, father of William the Conqueror, rode by, saw and took a fancy to her. William the Conqueror resulted. The Duke later married the young lady.

His mother was a peasant that couldn't read, never married to his father. He had all the brains of the family, and took care of his aristocratic half-brothers and of his peasant mother, in spite of the fact that the half-brothers treated him badly.

Don't worry, Mr. White, about "intelligent people having fewer children than the unintelligent." It is hard to say just WHAT intelligence is. Emotion, especially in mothers, has as much to do with the progress of the human race as anything else.

When you see a woman of the "lower, unintelligent class," about which you worry, gazing into the face of her child, perhaps the first, perhaps the tenth, you see there an emotion that should free you from worry about the future of the human race.

The humblest mother has it in her to give to the world the greatest men. And the greatest men usually have come from humble mothers.

Colored Men's Progress

There is a most interesting exhibition representing the material and intellectual progress of the colored race in America since the Civil War.

An enthusiastic but far too modest colored man of culture said that the evidence of colored progress given at this exhibition demonstrated conclusively that the freeing of the colored people was not a mistake. We notice that the press notices prepared by or for the representatives of the exhibition make this same suggestion that freedom must be justified by evidence of material progress.

But, however little human liberty needs to be justified by its capacity to stimulate material progress, it is always a delight to the lovers of liberty to see how it expands the people who gain it—how it releases their bound-down energies and lets the sun into minds kept dark by the dungeon of their servitude.

Everyone who can will find it interesting to attend this exhibition and whether white or colored will be gratified at the progress the colored race is shown to have made since they gained their freedom.

We rejoice in the evidences of progress of our colored fellow citizens not only because it is an added tribute to freedom, but because they are our fellow citizens—they are an integral part of the American nation—nearly an eighth of us. The development of their talents is the development of American talents. Their prosperity is American prosperity.

All truisms, but sometimes they are wisely repeated.

That's the Cry of the Day

Our friends of the League of Nations are hard up. The finance committee is behind five million gold francs on its 1921 expenses. It would be so simple if only the United States were included: "Hand the bill to Uncle Sam."

Uncle Sam has financial problems of his own, and American bankers are thinking about them. Refunding of obligations the first of the year will call for nearly two billions of dollars. Some probably will come from short notes, some from a longer loan.

Will Mr. Mellon, real financial expert, "get by" without making money dearer all over the country?

Veterans of Foreign Wars

Editor Boston American:

Last week an article appeared in the Boston papers with a statement made by Dr. McCarthy relative to the assistance given ex-service men by the American Legion. In fairness to the Veterans of Foreign Wars I wish to answer Dr. McCarthy in the following statement: Under the last administration of this department a poppy drive was conducted through most of our posts and auxiliaries. Past State Commander MacDonald gave out a statement at that time that about $10,000 was realized by these posts and auxiliaries through the sale of poppies. The money collected is being handled by a relief committee in each, respective post and auxiliary who have been and are at present time distributing same for relief. The Department of Massachusetts, V. F. W., received no finances from this undertaking.

Dr. McCarthy charges that no public returns have been made of funds collected. We do not believe that publicity should be given matters of relief, as all cases are treated strictly confidential. The files of this office are open at all times to any one who may wish to investigate same. JOHN H. DUNN,

Commander, Department of Mass., V. F. W.

Publicity Stated

Editor Boston American:

We wish to state that the Massachusetts Association of Disabled Veterans of the World War has always publicly stated where its funds and other donations have been distributed. The only public drive which we ever conducted was held in the Fall of 1921 and we received approximately $2,000. It was spent exclusively for the purpose for which it was raised, namely, to buy shoes and clothes for the disabled veterans, without the expense of one cent being deducted. We have a receipt for every dollar of this fund exposed. WILLIAM H. BURNS,

President M. A. of D. V. of the W. W., Inc.

Preserve the Old

Editor Boston American:

The meeting of the so-called "sentinels" was held for the purpose of honoring Samuel Adams; but instead of honoring his birth, they only "reviled and smirched it. In the first instance, many of the addresses derided revolution, peaceful or otherwise. And while the "Colonials" were praised they were denounced for being too radical. Perhaps one of the speakers, Mr. Williams, an American, I believe, by birth, would have us believe it were best if the Colonies bowed in submission to the tyranny and oppression of England in 1776.

"We must guard against those who would take our liberties from us." One of the best ways to do so, is by preparedness—when the time comes—war—and the Colonies did so.

It is wrong to let you, me and every honest working man, have a say in his government? The land his forefathers fought for?

HARRY KROVITSKY,

First Good Words

Editor Boston American:

I should certainly like to shake Michael H. Fallon by the hand! Over his name in your paper appear the first words I have read in favor of the Turk since I have been in the country—a matter of twelve years.

I appreciate, too, his remarks about to misrepresentations and lies that are continually being published in the United States in this respect—European propaganda, hellish and diabolical, as Mr. Fallon states. Instigated with the full knowledge that the Americans are the only people that will swallow any kind of far-fetched yarn that is printed in the newspapers, provided always that it is detrimental and inimical to others.

Columbus

Editor Boston American:

The venomous spirit of antagonism that prevails throughout this country towards individual nationality and denomination can be obliterated by the perusal of a few historical facts. One illustrious example for today, consider Christopher Columbus. Nearly three years since the termination of the World War have passed. It was generally believed and hoped for at least that race hatred, narrowness and bigotry would be eliminated. We have all read or heard of numerous glorious and illustrious examples of unity of spirit, of brotherly love, justice, fidelity—admirable! Has it been efficacious? Unfortunately no! All hail to Columbus, the greatest discoverer the world ever knew! More rightful claim to this country no others have than good Italians. Race hatred and religion should and must be cast into oblivion. Peace, prosperity and happiness will then reign. It is a noble and admirable spirit to possess a liberal and practical mind.

Difference in Transportation

Editor Boston American:

On the sidewalk near the curbing ropes are stretched during rush hours, forming long narrow lanes, in which prospective passengers wait their turn to board a homeward-bound bus. A sign designates each lane, a sign on the side of the bus also tells its route and destination. There is no confusion, no running, pushing, crowding or fighting for seats. Each bus will seat fifty-three; no more are taken. The fare is 10 cents. The place is Fifth avenue at Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

An elevated train comes to a stop between two long platforms. On the left platform surface cars are waiting. Passengers are leaving seat and strap to gather at the doors. On the right platform a few Everett-bound passengers are waiting to board the train. The doors are opened and they enter, if possible. Now, the other doors are open, the race is on. The surface cars are of different sizes. Picking out one that is familiar, you dash in and out through the moving crowd and join the fight at the doors. Some are trying to get off—it must be an express. So you try the car ahead—that is perhaps a local. The fare is 10 cents. The place is Sullivan square, Boston.

Old Newspapers

Editor Boston American:

Having read in your paper of a number of people who have old newspapers, I thought perhaps you might be interested in two which I have. One is a copy of the London Journal, March 4, 1720, and the other is the Sun, London, July 10, 1838, containing the account of the coronation of Queen Victoria.

Time and Mode of Living

Editor Boston American:

With reference to Mrs. Florence Sparks' paragraph, "Man and Monkey," I would like to point out that the Darwinian theory is supported by common sense, inasmuch as by a close scrutiny of the frame of any animal one can see a similarity to that of the human frame, only time and the mode of living has changed its form. Note the evolution of the butterfly, which in itself supports the contention that man evolved from lower organisms.

Another case in point is when life leaves the human body decomposition sets in, when everything goes back to its original constituents. Then by the action of the sun, etc., we have a new creation. BUTTERFLY.

YOU are inventive, original and adventurous if today is your birthday, but in no sense a romanticist. You see and think clearly and you are willing to stand or fall by the accuracy of your estimate.

Your ensuing year will be quiet and uneventful—a year of consolidation.

SEEN AND HEARD

A WELLESLEY College student asked for the "Leaves of Grass" by WALT WHITMAN in a book store on Park street. The clerk returned after investigating on the shelves of agricultural and farming books, and said: "We haven't got the book and it is not listed in our farm books." "Why, it's a poem, not a book on pasturage," was the nifty reply of the Wellesley junior.

INSPECTOR JOHN A. DORSEY bears the well-earned reputation of being the Beau Brummell of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation. During the progress of the Men's Apparel Show, INSPECTOR DORSEY was standing outside Mechanics Hall. Two wide-eyed baby vamps, on their way into the show caught sight of him, and rushing up to where he stood queried excitedly: "Please, are you one of the models?"

GEORGE GAUL of Thetford avenue, Dorchester, one of the leading lights of the Scarboro Golf Club, presiding over the public links at Franklin Park, is looking elated these days. His friends say it is because still more of the park is to be given up to golfers as soon as the new 18-hole course is completed.

Not many baseball fans remember how "STUFFY" McINNIS, the artist of the diamond, got his name. "It was this way," says "Stuffy." "When I was a youngster playing with the boys I was a bit small for my age. The fellows used to 'kid' me about my size, but when I'd slide to a base the gang would yell—"'S stuff, McInnis! At's a stuff!' Then they dropped into saying 'Stuff McInnis, and finally it was "Stuffy."

THOMAS, the big black cat who owns the Chamber of Commerce building on Milk and India streets, strolled out on the little patch of green lawn in front of the building today and found it in possession of a lean, hungry gray cat of the genus alley. "Get-r-outahere!" yelled Thomas to the intruder. "Cmonanputmeout," sputtered the alley cat, and the fight was on. Grain brokers and their clerks surrounded the lawn, while pretty stenographers put their fingers in their ears and scattered. The language the cats were using was not fit for their ears. Sleek, fat Thomas was out of training and the alley cat won in one round. Thomas went into the basement and hid under the boilers, whence no amount of coaxing and offers of cream could bring him forth.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON TELESCOPE SOCIETY

By Garrett P. Serviss

I OFTEN receive letters inquiring where the writers can have an opportunity to look through an astronomical telescope. At a few of the large working observatories, as at Yale, Yerkes, Lick and Mount Wilson, arrangements have been made for gratifying, to a limited extent, this growing desire on the part of the public to see some of the wonderful things in the heavens that are familiar to astronomers. But, in general, the telescopes at such places are too actively employed in scientific observations to be left even for a few hours a week at the disposal of sightseers.

There are also a few telescopes, as on Mount Lowe, in California, which are specially devoted to popular observation purposes. These are numerous. There ought to be a people's observatory near every great centre of population; and in an age and country less absorbed than ours in mere money-making, there would be, how pitifully little needed appear those who never think of the universe and never longingly and wonderingly lift their eyes to it!

However, there is a way in which those who feel a genuine urge toward astronomical observation can gratify their wish, and at slight expense and with very little preparation, do good, and useful work in practical astronomy. Good eyes, critical judgment, but no mathematics are need. Join the American Association of Variable Star Observers, the newest and one of the most successful astronomical societies in the world.

This is not a money-making enterprise, but a union of enthusiastic workers, whose work is a recreation and a delight, full of surprises and sometimes of marvel, and never tedious, because every worker feels that he is adding to the sum of the world's knowledge, and helping toward the solution of vast, absorbing problems, that once conception of which is an honor to humanity.

This association was formed under the initiative of William Taylor Olcott, of Norwich, Ct., and with the encouragement of the late Professor Edward C. Pickering, director of the Harvard Observatory. During the few years that it has been in existence it has accumulated a unique series of continuous observations on variable stars, which observations are regularly distributed to all the observatories in the world, and form a growing basis for the ultimate determination of one of the great fundamental laws of the universe—that of the evolution of suns and planets.

The work is done at home, wherever a small telescope can be set up on a tripod out of doors. A covered observatory and a fixed pillar, with clock-work and other refinements are not necessities, and in most cases are not possessed. Moreover, the association undertakes to obtain telescopes, for the use of members who have none of their own, and supplies them with charts by which the stars to be observed may be located. All that is required in return is faithful work, and such work, I repeat, is not a task, but a pleasure and an education.

—Medbury Says—

The New Long Dresses Are a Godsend to the Moths; They Have Been Starving for a Few Years

Something had to be done to keep the men off the street corners, so the women are wearing long dresses again.

Some of the skirts are so long that they drag on the ground. The street sweepers have noticed this and decided that it would be folly to strike for higher wages.

One woman discovered that she was followed by a guy with a watering can. After her dress swept the street he sprinkled it.

She didn't realize her dress was so long, but when she got home she found that she had brought four newspapers, two tin cans and seven cigarette butts with her.

These new long dresses are a godsend to the moths. Most of them have been starving to death the last two or three years.

The average dress has been so short that a moth couldn't find a decent place to eat.

A New York cop found an ex-convict crying on the street corner and asked him what the trouble was. The convict said, "It's just my luck; as soon as I get out of jail the women start wearing long dresses."

Women would have started wearing long dresses a long time ago only they didn't want the other women to think they were bowlegged.

Now that skirts are lengthy, dressmakers will be hired by the day again instead of by the hour.

It used to be that you'd call up the seamstress and say, "I wish you'd come over for twenty-five or thirty minutes and make my daughter a couple of new dresses."

Now they are so long the only way you can keep them off the ground is to ride in taxi cabs.

But it will be a relief to be able to recognize your grandmother without having to look her in the face.

With a woman in short skirts and a man in knickerbockers, you couldn't tell whether they were on their way to school or the golf links.

But it must be galling to a dame to have to use for one dress the material that used to do for three.

Now, when she wants to go away, she'll have to pack her wardrobe in a trunk instead of a vanity case.

One man told his sweetheart he admired her girdle. How did he know it was a dress.

But now that long skirts are back again, the germs will be able to ride to where they're going instead of walking.
